FINLAND WEEPS

STAGGERED BY RED TERMS, 'FORSAKEN BY DEMOCRACIES'

HELSINKI, March 13 (AP)—Weary Finland, lacking weapons and skeptical of foreign offers of help, ended her bitter three-and-one-half-months struggle against Soviet Russia today by yielding more soil and economic and military independence than Russia demanded before the war.

At 11 a. m. (4 a. m., EST), the dogged, courageous Finnish army stopped fighting, and a gloomy peace settled over the battlefields from the corpse-piled Karelian Isthmus to icy Lapland.

2 REDS SEE 'BRITISH DEFEAT'

MOSCOW, March 13 (AP)—Soviet Russia gained broad territorial, economic and military footholds in Finland today with a treaty ending her costly 105-day war in a fashion which the Kremlin regards as the greatest defeat of the British in a century.

RISTO RYTÖ
Peace Loser

The undeclared war's conclusion was looked upon at the Soviet seat of government as a "splendid contribution to world peace."

(Britain and France, at war with Germany, Russia's friend, offered yesterday to send an army to aid Finland, but the Finns acceded to Russia's terms last night and said they had lost faith in foreign promises.)

The treaty's terms indicate that Russia has achieved her long-sought security for Leningrad from assault by any power by land or sea over Finnish soil or waters.

Viiipuri, the Finnish city which goes to Russia under the treaty, has been called the key to Leningrad's defense since Peter the Great founded Leningrad as St. Petersburg.

REDS PAY HIGH PRICE

The price paid by the Russians in three and one-half months of fighting undoubtedly was a heavy one, but it was pointed out that the

Peace Winner

MOSCOW, March 13 (AP)—The entire Finnish delegation which last night signed a treaty of peace with Soviet Russia left early this afternoon for Stockholm aboard the special Swedish plane which brought them here.

Soviet Union was a rich country, able and willing to pay well for its gains.

Hostilities ended at 11 a. m. today (4 a. m. E. S. T.), the announcement said, with the Finnish government allowed three days to ratify the treaty.

Under the treaty, Finland would yield to Russia:

The entire Karelian Isthmus, including the bitterly-contested Mannerheim defense line, strewn with Russian and Finnish corpses; The wrecked but uncaptured city of Viipuri, along with Viipuri Bay and its islands;

NEW RED WAR BASE

All the shores of Lake Ladoga and some territory northeast of the lake (where the Finns have reported the slaying of thousands of Russian troops);

A 30-year Russian lease on the peninsula of Hanko, Finnish "Gibraltar" at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, which Russia intends to convert into a military and naval base;

Various islands in the Gulf of Finland;

A broad swath of eastern Finland in the region of the Arctic circle;

Part of the Sredni and Rybachii peninsulas on the Arctic ocean; A railroad to be built this year to link Russia's White sea ports with the Gulf of Bothnia;

Operation of a Russian airline across the Petsamo district be-

FINLAND'S DOOM?—Above map illustrates the drastic concessions made by Finland when she accepted Soviet-dictated peace. Cessation of hostilities was blow to Allies, victory for Germany.

Hit British Failure to Aid Finns

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—A demand for a formal debate on Britain's "whole conduct of the war" came today from Leslie Hore-Belisha, recently dismissed war minister, as he made a bitter attack on the government in the House of Commons in a stormy debate on Finland's capitulation to Soviet Russia.

Hore-Belisha, whose ouster Jan. 5 never was fully explained, but who is known to have advocated dispatch of a British expeditionary force to Finland before he left office, asserted British refusal to supply more help was based on "a pure technicality."

Prime Minister Chamberlain refused to say whether he would allow the requested full-dress debate.

LAID FINNS' FIGHT

Hore-Belisha entered today's discussion after Chamberlain had praised Finnish resistance and both Labor and Liberal leaders joined in expressing admiration for the Finns and deploring what they called another triumph for aggression.

Chamberlain faced a sober Parliament anxious to question him

ASSASSIN SHOTS 4 IN LONDON

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—Sir Michael O'Dwyer, former lieutenant governor of the Punjab was shot to death and Lord Zetland, Secretary of State for India, was wounded by an Indian gunman at a meeting of the India Association tonight in London.

Sir Louis Dane and Lord Lamington also were wounded.

Sir Michael, an official of Britain's Indian civil service from 1885 to 1920, was known as an advocate of strong measures in handling the Indian problem.

He was 75 years old. Lord Zetland has held the Indian portfolio in the British cabinet since 1935. Lord Lamington is a former governor of Bombay and Sir Louis, like Sir Michael, is a former lieutenant-governor of the Punjab.

For rescuing women in a fire in Hotel Roosevelt in the South End, Patrolmen Frank N. Reynolds and Timothy J. O'Keefe today won commendations from Acting Police Commissioner Fallon.

Nazis Get Italy Coal Pact British Wanted

ROME, March 13 (AP)—Italy and Germany today signed an agreement whereby the Reich agrees to supply Italy's coal needs by rail in view of the Allied sea blockade against shipments by sea.

Details of the agreement were withheld, but it was announced negotiations for it were started by German Minister von Ribbentrop and Premier Mussolini over the week-end.

(International News Service dispatch from Berlin said that under the new agreement, the Reich will supply 750,000 tons of coal monthly by overland routes.)

(Italy's coal consumption approximates 11,000,000 tons yearly. According to Berlin circles, the dispatch added, the new agreement will enable Italy to get all the coal she needs from Germany, Yugoslavia and the United States without being compelled to buy from Britain.)

(Editor's Note—London recently reported the possibility of an Anglo-Italian coal agreement whereby Britain would supply Italy with all the sea-borne coal she needs.)

It was reported in political circles that German coal would be routed through three or more Alpine passes. Germany is expected in some commercial quarters to supply cars for the coal from the Ruhr and Westphalia, while Italy would use most of its 6000 cars for transport of coal from Poland.

The agreement was signed for Germany by Dr. Karl Ciodius, economic expert who recently negotiated the new German-Italian trade agreement, and for Italy by Sen. Amadeo Giannini.

'Shipment Impossible? Not to Us!' Say Nazis

BERLIN, March 13 (AP)—German authorities manifested satisfaction today over conclusion in Rome of a new agreement under which Germany, to dodge the Allied sea blockade, will send coal to Italy by rail.

Asked whether it was physically possible to ship to Italy the same quantity of coal as previously, authorized sources said:

"We have often done things that the world regarded as impossible. The word 'impossible' does not exist in our vocabulary."

SOVIETS' PRICE OF PEACE

Here are the terms exacted by the Soviet government as the price of peace in Finland:

- 1—Cession of the entire Karelian Isthmus, including the port of Viipuri (Viborg) to Russia.
- 2—Cession of the entire shore line of Lake Ladoga, including a large segment of Finnish territory northeast of the lake.
- 3—Leasing of Hanko, strategic peninsula near the entrance of the Gulf of Finland, for a Soviet army and navy base.

- 4—Commercial negotiations for a new trade pact are to be opened as soon as possible. (Copenhagen heard that the western half of the Fiskar Peninsula, jutting into the Arctic, now owned jointly by Russia and Finland, is to be ceded to the Soviets.)
- 5—Russian troops will evacuate the Petsamo district in the Arctic, and Finland will demilitarize the district.

- 6—Russian troops are to be allowed to move up to the new frontiers by 10 a. m. on March 15.
- 7—Russia and Norway are to have the right to free transit, without any customs restrictions, across the Finnish "corridor" to the Arctic.
- 8—A railroad is to be built across northern Finland from Kandalaska to Kemijarvi.
- 9—The treaty is to be ratified within three days.

Connolly Denies He Ever Got Job Levies

He never received a penny of payment for any employee's job in his office and never even heard claims of any such payments until charges were filed against him in 1939, former Clerk of Superior Civil Courts John Patrick Connolly testified today.

HUSBAND-FATHER KILLED

TRAGEDY struck suddenly today at Mrs. Florence Craig of Hunting st., Cambridge, pictured with two of her children, Anita, 3, and George, Jr., 6, when her husband died after a fall from a third floor window of their home.

PLUNGES TO DEATH IN ROW WITH WIFE

A Cambridge father of three children plunged three floors to his death today following an argument about finances during which his wife threatened to leave him, according to police.

Inquiry into the events prior to the tragic fall taken by George Craig to the sidewalk outside his Hunting st. home was undertaken by police at the request of the medical examiner.

The wife, Mrs. Florence Craig, revealed the events preceding Craig's plunge, including an explanation of a slight injury of her own, police said.

Police say she told them she ran down to the street following her husband's tragic leap, where her cries attracted neighbors who summoned assistance.

While Craig was being removed to an ambulance Mrs. Craig fell in a faint and later was hysterical, according to the police report.

She also was taken to the Cambridge City Hospital and was discharged immediately following treatment for a cut on the knee and shock over her husband's death. Left fatherless by the tragedy are Craig's three small children, Robert, 2; Anita, 3, and George, 6. He had recently obtained employment as a cook in a Boston luncheon after being out of work for months.

He took the witness stand in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, where he and his alleged "good-will fund" collector, William T. Conway, are on trial for extortion and conspiracy.

Connolly appeared self-possessed and at ease, as he gave his testimony. He made free use of colorful slang terms and gave Judge George F. Leary and the locked-up jury a vivid behind-the-scenes picture of "practical politics" as played by himself and his associates in Suffolk County.

Telling of two girls he fired from his office and later reinstated, Connolly repeated verbatim versions of amazingly frank conversations between himself and persons who allegedly interceded for the dismissed workers.

TELLS OF CONWAY TALK

He said his "good friend" Conway, the co-defendant, came to him in behalf of Miss Mary Cunningham, one of the girls who were fired.

Under questioning by Atty. Abner R. Sisson, Connolly testified: "Bill (Conway) came to me and said Mary Cunningham was with me in my campaign."

"I said, 'Sure, Bill, they were all with me—after I won.'"

"Bill said, 'No, no. You know this girl's brother-in-law. He's a cop in South Boston. She was with you all the way.'"

"I said, 'Look, Bill, how can I take her back now? The whole town would be on my neck. They'll know I'll weaken under pressure.'"

"Bill said, 'But you can't let her go. She was with you.'"

"I said, 'I'll admit I made a mistake. I pulled a boner. Tell her to come back.'"

Connolly specifically denied he ever knew of a payment of $250 allegedly made to Conway by Miss Cunningham's brother-in-law, Patrolman Edward J. Kegan.

AGAINST GIVING JOB BACK

Conway also interceded for Miss Louise V. Crowley, another dismissed employee, Connolly testified. Miss Crowley is a niece of the late Police Supt. Michael H. Crowley.

A brother, John J. Crowley, testified for the government that he paid Conway $250 to get his sister reinstated in Connolly's office.

But Connolly testified today: "Bill (Conway) told me Miss Crowley's brother had got in touch with him and wanted her given her job back. I said defi-

HIGH COURT VOIDS MAYOR O'BRIEN'S JAIL SENTENCE

Criticizing the trial judge, the full bench of Supreme Court today cleared ex-Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere of embezzlement charges against him and voided a prison sentence of three to five years.

In its decision, written by Justice Louis S. Cox, the high court overturned the guilty finding of a superior court jury 10 months ago and asserted that Judge Lewis H. Goldberg should have directed a verdict of not guilty for O'Brien.

The full bench decision was on exceptions taken when Judge Goldberg refused to allow a defense motion for a directed verdict.

VICTORY OVER DEVER

In being cleared of the charge, O'Brien won a sweeping victory over Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever, who had pressed this and other charges against the former city official. O'Brien was sentenced last June.

GOVERNOR OUSTS WOMAN OFFICIAL

Gov. Saltonstall today ousted Mrs. Margaret F. Gregory of Chicopee as a member of the State Board of Registration of Hairdressers, an action that must be passed upon by his executive council.

The Governor made his announcement of his first removal of a woman from her state job in a communication to the council, which said, with reference to the hearing given her:

"The evidence presented before me was confined to charge 1. I find that this charge is sustained and that Mrs. Gregory, on or about Sept. 1, 1939, during an audit by the state auditor of the funds in her custody, and control, as secretary of the state board, did deliberately and intentionally supply the auditor with incorrect vouchers and did attempt to obtain approval of her advance cash account on misleading data, as therein alleged."

The Governor also pointed out in his communication that Mrs. Gregory did not take the witness stand to defend the four charges against her.

W.A. Bodfish, Aide To Curley, Dies at 50

William A. Bodfish, 50, secretary to former Gov. James M. Curley during the latter's term in the State House, died suddenly today at his home in Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park.

PLAN 'MODEL VILLAGE'

HILL, N. H., March 13—Officials began making plans for construction of a "model village" after voters at the annual town meeting approved a $50,000 appropriation. The project will replace the community which is to be wiped out by the Franklin Falls flood control dam.

A descendant of one of the oldest families in Massachusetts, Bodfish was one of five brothers who served in armed forces of the United States during the World War.

He was U. S. consul at Seville, Spain, for several years, and was at one time secretary of the State Motor Vehicles Appeal Board.

N. H. Third Termers Win Overwhelmingly

CONCORD, N. H., March 13 (INS)—Presenting a preview of reaction to the third term issue, almost complete returns today in the Democratic and Republican presidential preference primaries, first in the nation, showed:

1—Eight delegate-at-large candidates pledged to the support of a third term for President Roosevelt at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago overwhelmed their opponents.

2—The magic name of Roosevelt accumulated only one-fourth the strength of the four Republican delegate-at-large candidates to the G. O. P. National Convention in Philadelphia.

3—Democratic delegate candidates pledged to Postmaster General James A. Farley and Vice President John Nance Garner trailed.

4—Two Republican candidates favoring Diet. Atty. Thomas E. Dewey of New York were lost under an avalanche of votes to the four candidates pledged to support United States Sen. H. Styles Bridges, a native son.

TEST OF POWER

Some politicians saw the Granite State's primary as a test of the ballot box power of Mr. Roosevelt's name but voting in the cities, Democratic stronghold, was limited only to three hours, while the Republican vote was heaviest in small towns where 224 town meetings were held.

Returns from 280 out of 294 voting wards in New Hampshire gave:

Mayor Damase Caron, of Manchester (Roosevelt pledged)—10,280. All other Roosevelt candidates were leading, with the lowest man over 6000 votes.

Farley candidates ran 4335 and 3423.

BRIDGES ON TOP

On the Republican side, Senator Bridges topped the field with 32,583; United States Senator Charles W. Tobey 30,000; Ex-United States Senator George H. Moses 25,063, and Ex-Governor Huntley Spaulding 24,000.

All the Republican delegates were officially unpledged, but were ready to back Bridges on the first ballot.

Governor Francis P. Murphy, who was expected to win a place on the delegation to the national convention, trailed in fifth place.

J. Howard Giles, of Nashua, pledged to Dewey, received only 7569 votes.

B. U. Student Arrested As Burglar

In a Brookline filling station a 19-year-old Boston University student was trapped today by two policemen as he was allegedly attempting to break open a cigarette machine.

The prisoner said he was Douglas A. Lapham of North ave., Attleboro, sometimes a resident of a Boston University fraternity house in March rd., Brookline, although he told police he is married.

Police say he admitted breaking into another filling station in Commonwealth ave., Allston, but had been unable to open the safe.

Patrolmen Thomas Morrow and Thomas MacGregor, who surprised Lapham in the Brookline filling station, said he had obtained only one dime when they trapped him. In Brookline court, the youth pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering and larceny and was held in $1000 bail for a hearing Saturday.

Camp Enrollment To Start Friday

Enrollment of young men for the 1940 Citizens' Training Camps will begin Friday, it was announced here by Maj-Gen. James A. Woodruff, commander of the First Corps Area.

Camps will be conducted at Fort Devens in Massachusetts, Fort Adams in Rhode Island, Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont and Fort McKinley in Maine.

U. S. Paid $2294 For King Fete

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP)—It cost Congress $2294 to shake hands with the King and Queen of Great Britain last summer.

The item was disclosed today when testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee was made public. The House and the Senate split the bill evenly.

The reception, held for Their Majesties in the Capitol rotunda, lasted less than an hour. The expenses were largely for floral decorations, velvet ropes and other incidentals.

FIRE KILLS REVERE WOMAN, 90

Dripping water which alarmed a downstairs neighbor today revealed the tragic death in flames of Mrs. Mary R. Cowan, 90, of Walnut st., Revere.

The elderly woman, alone in her apartment while her daughter whom she lived tended her store around the corner, made a desperate attempt, police believe, to extinguish the flames which enveloped her.

A downstairs neighbor, Mrs. William Gallagher, was aroused by water seeping through the ceiling and rushed to the victim's daughter, Janet A. Robbins in her Campbell ave. store.

Mrs. Robbins rushed home to find her mother still ablaze at the top of the stairs where she had fallen.

Unable to approach the stricken woman because of the intensity of the fire, Mrs. Robbins rushed to the street calling to passersby to summon firemen.

Police found the kitchen sink overflowing from a running faucet and a broken pitcher nearby.

They believe Mrs. Cowan had made an attempt to put out the blaze, ignited in a mysterious manner as she tended the stove.

Graves Indicted In $400 Theft

Frederick H. Graves, recently released from jail after serving sentence for perjury in connection with the city's $50,000 suit against former Governor Curley and Dr. Joseph A. Santouso, was indicted today on a charge of larceny of $400 from Arthur H. Whitcomb, Jr., of Newton.

The indictment was returned by the Suffolk county grand jury. Arrested on the larceny charge when he left Barnstable jail several weeks ago, Graves was held by the lower court after the judge there had declined jurisdiction.

The complaint against Graves was based on his alleged activity in a proposed Rockingham Race Track Sweepstakes.

CLINTON RAPS TRAIN ELIMINATIONS

Proposed elimination of two daily passenger trains on the Lowell-Worcester branch of the Boston & Maine brought a storm of protests from Clinton officials and business men today.

Appearing before the Public Utilities Commission, the Clinton men objected to proposed discontinuance of a train that leaves Lowell

Such curtailment would damage the town's industries and create unemployment, City Solicitor H. L. McLaughlin and Clinton Postmaster William F. McNamara complained.

Critically hurt when they plunged three stories from a burning Salem factory, Emmanuel Prokopi, 62, is reported dying today while Mrs. Marie Caisse, 17-year-old bride, is making a gallant fight for recovery.

Cripple Slays 2, Then Kills Self

CHICAGO, March 13 (AP)—A crippled youth committed suicide after slaying an elderly couple who intervened when he attempted to attack their granddaughter.

The youth was Howard Larimer, 23, a senior in the Morrill School for Crippled Children, where he had been regarded as a brilliant student.

His victims were Hugh J. Welch, 72, and his wife, Mary, 70.

Bernadette Welch, 24, victim of the attempted attack, and her sister, Mary Ann, 16, were hysterical for several hours after the shooting.

Mary Ann, a schoolmate of Larimer, discovered her grandparents' bodies. She summoned a neighbor, Mrs. Mercedes Carlson, who found Larimer struggling with Bernadette. She said Larimer fired at her, but missed. While he was reloading the gun, Bernadette and Mrs. Carlson escaped. Larimer later was found fatally wounded.

2 Convicts Cut Off Their Legs

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., March 13 (AP)—O. J. S. Ellington, general manager of the Texas Prison System, disclosed today two convicts had cut off their legs in the latest outbreak of self-mutilation at Eastham prison farm.

He said both were drug addicts. Eight other prisoners have arms, three have broken legs and one sliced his flesh off his heels. Ellington said a practice of serving coffee to men in the fields recently was discontinued, arousing enmity of the prisoners.

FLOWER SHOW DAY FOR MAYOR

Its Mayor Tobin Day today at the annual New England Flower Show at Mechanics Building, with the mayor and his party joining thousands of other winter-weary persons in a peek at spring's blooms.

Already, the President's Cup, donated to the "most meritorious exhibit," has been won by William T. Walke of Salem, who considers himself just "a dirt flower grower."

The top prize was awarded his amaryllis, a gorgeous lily he has been growing for 40 years. Gold medals, ribbons and prizes galore have been given him during his 20 years as an exhibitor to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society show—but this is the first time he captured the most coveted honor.

Jamaica Plain high school, only high school in the city with an agricultural department, won the annual inter-school flower, judging and plant identification contest in which 65 youngsters, in 11 teams, competed.

Members of the Jamaica Plain team were Josephine Bayley, Marshall Rice and Elizabeth Scanlon.

In second place was the Bristol County Agricultural School, represented by Henry Jackson, Mary Shobel and Charles Cote, and third was the Essex County Agricultural School, Frank O'Connor, Peter Vent and John Ambrose.

Individual winners in the judging contest were: Josephine Bayley, Jamaica Plain high school; Seth Hamblin, Barnstable high school; Francis Gifford, Barnstable high school.

Individual winners in plant identification were: Henry Jackson, Wilfred Tilton and Charles Cote, Bristol County Agricultural School. Individual winners for judging and identification were: Miss Setley, Tilton, and Miss Schobel.

Catholic Wedding For Henry Ford 2d

NEW YORK, March 13—Although no date yet has been set for the wedding, Henry Ford, 2d, grandson of the motor magnate, will be married in a Catholic church, it was revealed today on the announcement of his engagement to Miss Anne McDonnell.

Announcement of the engagement was made by Mr. and Mrs. James F. McDonnell of New York and Southampton, Long Island.

Young Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford of Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich., now is taking instructions in the Roman Catholic faith from the Rt. Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, famed educator at Catholic University in Washington.

Mgr. Sheen, nationally known radio speaker, was instrumental in winning the late Heywood Brown and many other converts to the Catholic religion.

The bride-to-be was graduated from the convent of the Sacred Heart and also studied at Grotanelli School, Sienna, Italy.

Ford is the grandson of Henry Ford, one of the world's richest men. He was graduated from Hotchkiss School and is a member of the 1940 Yale class. He is manager of the Book and Snake Society and Zeta Psi fraternity.

Oldsters Hit In Safety Talk

Reversing the famous lines, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today said that life in traffic ENDS suddenly at 40 and over.

The registrar, in a frank indictment of "nose and buggy oldsters," told the Massachusetts Safety Councils' workshop session, that pedestrians over 40 can't be educated in traffic safety.

Why? Because they were born before the advent of the automobile. They can't be convinced of the menace of highway carelessness.

Yep, the registrar had figures to prove it. Not only his statistics, but those from other New England states.

MOTHERS PROVIDE FOR UNBORN

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 13 (AP)—Babies are provided with a natural springboard to life shortly before birth.

In a report discussed today by scientists of the Federated Biological Societies prior to the opening of the annual meeting of the organizations, Dr. Louis H. Flexner of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Richard B. Roberts of the Carnegie Institution of Washington declared that in man and animals the mother stores up an extra surge of food and energy for several days before birth occurs.

One of the world's largest atom-smashing machines was the principal medical instrument used in finding how nature provides the pre-birth catapult.

Dr. Roberts used the Carnegie Institution's huge electro-static generator to bombard salt with particles of atoms until it became radioactive, giving off rays similar to those emitted by radium.

Dr. Flexner then injected it into various animals, including humans, and studied its progress through the body by detecting the radioactivity of various parts, a procedure which is coming into wide use to trace the distribution of chemicals after they are administered—a procedure never possible before.

The Johns Hopkins scientist found that shortly before birth the placenta, which carries nourishment from the mother to the baby, suddenly becomes much more permeable, admitting a freer flow of food to the infant to carry it through the critical period of birth and maintain it for many hours later.

ARCHBISHOP ASSAILS TYRANNY

For New York's archbishop delivered a ringing pledge to defend the fundamental liberties of American citizenship as well as confessing anew his faith.

"In the presence of God and before all of you, I confess my Catholic faith, I profess and glory in my American citizenship. I pledge myself to defend our fundamental liberties shining as they do like flaming jewels in our frame of government, priceless and precious.

"I am for all of our freedoms and our freedom. I am opposed to tyranny, even though it call itself freedom. I am opposed to anarchy even though it call itself liberty. I am opposed to traitors, though they wave American flags and call themselves patriots. I am opposed to lawlessness and violence in speech and action.

"I believe in America, in the fundamental righteousness of our Constitution, the basic righteousness of our people in their sincere desire to live in harmony, helpfulness and peace with their fellowmen and in obedience to her laws and the commandments of the church."

The archbishop expressed appreciation and gratification over President Roosevelt's designation of Myron C. Taylor as his personal envoy to the Holy See, with the rank of ambassador so that, in the President's words, "parallel endeavors for peace and the alleviation of suffering would be assisted."

Former Chief Justice Deasy Dies in Maine

PORTLAND, Me., March 13—Retired Chief Justice Luere B. Deasy of the Maine Supreme Court, married at 80 years of age little more than 10 months ago, died today at his hotel apartment here.

He had been retired from the bench since June, 1932, when he rounded out nearly half a century in law practice.

The judge and his second wife, the former Mrs. Marcia Killman, 67, of Hancock st., came to Portland last November from their home at Oak Point, Trenton, to spend the winter.

At that time he was ill and, according to friends today, the retired chief justice never fully recovered from that illness. The justice had practiced law, chiefly in Bar Harbor, since he was admitted to the bar in 1884.

A quarter century earlier, on Feb. 8, 1859, he was born at Gouldsboro, but the greater part of his life was spent in Bar Harbor. In 1907 he was elected to the State Senate, becoming president of that body in 1909.

He was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1918 and was made chief justice in 1929.

His first wife, Mrs. Emma M. Deasy, died in February, 1938, and on April 29 of last year, at Bangor, he was married to Mrs. Hillman.

In addition to the second wife, he is survived by two married daughters, Mrs. A. H. Hodgkins and Mrs. F. W. Gray.

Troops Called To Block Dam

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13 (AP)—Gov. Leon C. Phillips said he would declare martial law today at the $20,000,000 Grand River dam in Northeastern Oklahoma and send troops to prevent its completion.

Phillips decided he had reached a stalemate with the Public Works Administration, with whom he has been pressing a demand of the State Highway Department for $500,000.

National Guard units were mobilized at Tulsa and Tahlequah and moved to a concentration point at Wagoner, about 60 miles from the dam site.

O'BRIEN CLEARED BY COURT

23 to State Prison for three to five years on a charge of embezzlement of $13,277.01 from the city of Revere while he was city treasurer.

He had been convicted on the previous May 4, the jury, however, returning not guilty verdicts on two other counts of embezzlement and two counts of larceny.

Since the sentencing, however, O'Brien has been free on $500 personal recognizance, awaiting a trial by the Supreme Court on the exceptions and with the execution of the sentence stayed.

COURT'S DECISION

In its opinion, the full bench of Supreme court said:

"When the evidence is considered in the light of governing principles of law, we are of the opinion that the defendant's motion for a directed verdict should have been granted."

"There is no direct evidence of any fraudulent conversion or taking of money. Persons other than the defendant had access to the vault, and the Commonwealth's evidence fails to exclude the possibility of its loss in other ways than by fraudulent conversion by the defendant."

"There is no evidence of any falsified accounts. There is nothing to show any evasion on the part of the defendant in explaining his shortage. In fact, there is no evidence that anyone talked concerning the shortage until he sent for accountants on May 29."

COULD HAVE FOUND MONEY

"That there was a shortage was conceded, and the jury could have found that the money that was allegedly found in the tin box could have been in the vault when the treasurer took office."

"There is no evidence that the defendant himself replaced any money in the vault."

"Apart from the shortage, the only connection between the replacement of the money and the defendant is that the jury could have found that it was returned by his secretary, and that two days later he informed the accountant that it had been found."

"It is true that a financial defect fit would result to the defendant from the return of the money found in the vault, but in our opinion that fact that does not justify the conclusion that the defendant was guilty of the offense charged in the indictment."

"Upon this record, we are of the opinion that it was error to deny the defense motion for a directed verdict."

The case against O'Brien was prosecuted by Atty.-Gen. Dever, with Asst. Atty. Gen. John S. Derham doing the actual trying of the case.

CLIMAXED VICE PROBE

Just before the sentencing, O'Brien's counsel, James P. Brennan, argued that the ends of justice would be met by filing the case against the 51-year-old ex-mayor.

Porting reports every dollar of the missing $13,277.01 had been accounted for, Brennan argued that O'Brien had not profited by the embezzlement, and that there was a credit balance from the Revere city treasury.

O'Brien is indicted by a "grand jury" on May 27, 1938, following the investigation into vice and racketeering cases in Revere by Atty.-Gen. Dever, a probe precipitated by the sidewalk saying of Louis G. Dever, gambler, in October, 1937.

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

Connolly Denies He Ever Got Money for Court Jobs

nely not. I said, 'There are enough of those Crocus at the public payroll now. Give somebody else a whack at it.'

ALL WITH WINNER

Connolly said "Jimmy" Powers, former Governor's counselor from South Boston, also approached him in Miss Crowley's behalf. He said he told Powers there was "nothing doing."

John Crowley, the brother, also approached him personally, Connolly testified. He said he told Crowley:

"Where were you during my campaign? You fellows are all alike. You're always ready to slap a man on the back—when he wins!"

Connolly testified he finally reinstated Miss Crowley after he got a letter from his own father in terceding for her.

Connolly said he told Conway: "Bill, I can't have it known my own father asked me to keep someone and I didn't. I'd be labelled a proper punk."

Connolly testified Miss Crowley later made his father a gift of a $30 or $40 clock for his father's store in Roxbury.

WIFE TAKES STAND

Connolly denied he ever knew of any money paid by Miss Crowley's brother or by the girl, herself. He said she never mentioned such a payment to him.

He denied he ever authorized anyone to collect any payment from any employee to keep a job or obtain promotion.

Under early questioning by Atty. Sisson, Connolly sketched his own life career up to the time he was elected clerk of courts in 1936.

SKIVED IN NAYV

He said he attended grade schools of Boston and then opened a variety store in 1913. In 1917, when war was declared with Germany, he turned the store over to a relative and enlisted as a volunteer in the U. S. navy, serving 22 months, he testified.

He was married in 1920 and went to a veterans' hospital that same year, he said.

Connolly said he was discharged from the hospital in 1921.

He attended Suffolk law school nights and worked in a Boston law office days, he testified. He said he was admitted to the bar in 1925, was a defeated candidate for the Legislature that same year, but was elected representative in 1928 and 1930.

From 1931 to 1934, he was assistant clerk of Suffolk Superior Criminal Courts.

Jan. 1, 1935, he was appointed assistant attorney general by Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever, he testified.

GOT POLITICAL ADVICE

He said Dever approved his successful candidacy for Suffolk Superior Civil Courts clerk in 1936 but this testimony was stricken out by Judge Leary.

Q (By Atty. Sisson)—Did you have a number of friends and advisers as far as political strategy was concerned in your campaign? A—Yes, oh yes, everybody does in a campaign. I had half a dozen or more. I never made a move unless I called them up and talked it over.

Q—Was Mr. Conway one of these advisers? A—Yes, Bill's my friend. My very good friend.

Asked about his auto accident in August, 1936, Connolly testified he received a leg injury which kept him in bed until after the September primaries in which he won his nomination, equivalent to election.

Q—Your campaign continued while you were laid up? A—It moved along all right. But some of the wise guys ran out on me. They thought I was overboard.

Connolly specifically gave the lie to government witness John E. Noonan. The latter testified earlier in the trial that he was called to Connolly's office and Connolly told him, "I don't want to see you, but Bill Conway) does."

According to Noon, Conway said in Connolly's presence "I'll see you downstairs after five o'clock."

Noonan testified he met Conway downstairs and Conway demanded a payment from him to keep his job.

So far as the alleged conversation in his office was concerned, Connolly testified:

"It's utterly untrue. No such thing ever happened."

Connolly said Noonan asked him for promotion once, but he told Noonan:

"I won't recommend you. You've not prepared yourself. All you think about is the money you get, not the work you do. You've been on the public payroll so long you've lost sight of the fact you're a public employee."

Connolly also contradicted testimony given by Edward Kelley, an employee he recommended three times for promotion.

Kelley had testified that Connolly acknowledged $300 he paid to keep his job and told him that sum would be deducted from future "assessments."

"TELL ALL OVER" HIM

No such conversation occurred, Connolly testified.

Q—Did any employee in your office ever say to you he or she had paid or been asked to pay to keep a job? A—Never, they fell all over my gown there.

Connolly's wife, Mrs. Mary J. Connolly, took the witness stand just before he did.

She was called as the day's first witness in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, where Connolly and his alleged "good will fund" collector, William T. Conway, are on trial for extortion and conspiracy.

Mrs. Connolly said she and her husband are parents of eight children, ranging in age from 2 to 19.

HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Testifying before Judge George F. Leary and a locked-up jury, Mrs. Connolly said:

"My husband was hurt in an auto accident just before the September primaries in 1936. He was confined to his bed in the Parker House when the results came in showing he had won."

Q—(By Defense Atty. Abner R. Sisson)—Can you tell us who came to your husband after his victory? A—Mr. Brophy and Mr. Noonan came.

Q—Tell us what happened and what was said. A—There was a knock at the outer door. I opened it and Mr. Thomas Brophy and Mr. John F. Noonan came in. They looked very despondent. They asked me if they could see the new clerk. I took them into my husband's bedroom.

"WORRIED" ABOUT JOBS

Q—What was the conversation? A—Mr. Brophy and Mr. Noonan said they wanted to congratulate my husband on his victory. They said they were worried about their jobs in the clerk's office.

Q—What did Mr. Connolly say? A—He said, "What do you fellows think I am, a heel?"

Q—What did Brophy and Noonan say? A—They said, "Thank you, thank you very kindly."

Q—Did some one else come to ask your husband about keeping a job? A—Miss Martha Friel came. She came with a Parker House employee, Mr. David Nagel.

Q—Can you recall the conversation? A—Mr. Nagel stood at the foot of the bed with his arm around Miss Friel. He said, "This girl is a personal friend of mine, Mr. Connolly. Jim Friel drove the Black Maria down at the jail."

Q—What did Mr. Connolly say? A—He said, "If you're asking for her, Dave, it's all right with me."

Ginger Rogers Given Decree

LOS ANGELES, March 13 (AP)

—Screen actress Ginger Rogers was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce today after she testified Lew Ayres deserted her May 4, 1936.

Her mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers, was her corroborating witness. The hearing took but a few minutes.

Ayres made no appearance and Superior Judge Clement L. Shinn granted the decree by default.

COMMONS IN FERY FINN TILT

on last night's Moscow peace, in which Finland ceded to Russia more territory than was demanded last fall, and in particular to debate Britain's part in the Russian-Finnish war.

Chamberlain defended Britain's help to Finland. He expressed the nation's "admiration for the courage" of the Finns and repeated that "we had made preparations to throw the full weight of all available resources into the scales on hearing that this was in accordance with the desires of the Finnish government."

CRITICIZES DELAY

Hore-Belisha criticized the government for delaying sending men to Finland until requested by Finland to do so. Britain and France had disclosed they were ready to send troops immediately if Finland should ask for them.

While associating myself with the expressions of sympathy with the Finns," said Hore-Belisha, "is it not a fact that repeated appeals have been made by that country for assistance in materials and men and is it not a pity in relation to the magnitude of these events and their far-reaching character to plead as an excuse for inaction a pure technicality?"

Chamberlain retorted: "It is not correct to say that repeated requests for men and arms made by the Finnish government."

The Finnish government, said Chamberlain, "made repeated requests for materials and every one of those requests has been answered."

"They had been informed as long ago as Feb. 25 that if they were to make an appeal to us we making preparations to send them men as well as materials," said Chamberlain.

Only yesterday Premier Daladier of France declared that Britain and France had 50,000 troops fully equipped at two ports ready to embark immediately if Finland

ASKS FULL DEBATE

In the circumstances in which they found themselves, however, the Finns decided not to make such a request, Chamberlain said.

Hore-Belisha, dissatisfied with the Chamberlain statement on Finland, asked for a full Commons debate "in the light of these events on the whole conduct of the war."

Chamberlain declared in reply to a question that "at no time did we threaten the neutrality of Sweden." Sweden's neutrality was presumed to have been involved in the question of transporting British troops to Finland.

Hore-Belisha's request for a debate brought a shout from some members of the Labor bench "And discuss you, too, you want us to fight the whole world!"

When others asked about a debate, Chamberlain replied, "That's not a matter I can discuss across the floor of the House."

Asked for a statement on the actual amount of assistance given Finland, Chamberlain said he would have to have notice of that question, meaning that he required time to consider an answer.

Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky sat in the diplomatic gallery during the debate, leaving soon afterward.

Asked by the conservative Sir Archibald Southby if he was "satisfied that in these harsh peace terms accepted by the Finns there is a guarantee they will really be observed in spirit by Russia" and whether "the help offered by Britain and France to Finland had been rendered impossible by action of the Norwegian and Swedish governments," Chamberlain replied:

"It is obvious that I can give no such guarantee as asked for in the first part of the question. As regards the second part, a request for this help was not made by the Finnish government."

Britain "Always Too Late," Says Lloyd George

LONDON, March 13 (INS)—Britain is on the road toward disaster because it "has always been too late" in taking decisive action for the protection of Europe's smaller countries, David Lloyd George said in the House of Commons today.

The former World War prime minister bitterly criticized the Chamberlain government for "inaction," declaring: "It is an old trouble . . . too late."

"Too late for Czechoslovakia . . . too late for Poland and certainly too late for Finland. It is always too late or too little or both and that is the road toward disaster."

Stalin Executes Finland Reds?

COPENHAGEN, March 13 (INS)

Otto Kuusinen, Finnish Communist leader who served briefly as prime minister of a puppet Soviet established government at Terijoki, Finland, has been executed at the Kremlin with his entire cabinet, it was reported from Stockholm today.

The entire Finnish section of the Communist International likewise has disappeared, these reports stated.

Italy Has Million Men Ready for Defense

ROME, March 13 (AP)—General Ubaldo Soddu, undersecretary of war, told the Fascist chamber today that Italy is ready to defend its liberty of action with 1,000,000 men and with a fortified bulwark across its Alpine frontiers.

General Soddu outlined development of Italy's military might since the outbreak of the war.

PEACE BAD FOR ALLIES U. S. VIEW

WASHINGTON, March 13 (INS)

A deep official silence obviously tinged with the conviction in Washington that Franco-British prestige has received a damaging blow today greeted word of the Russo-Finnish peace.

Leaders in all official quarters—the White House, State Department, Congress and the diplomatic corps—declined public comment, but more than one privately admitted to the belief that the peace was "bad news" for the Allies.

All of course, expressed joy over termination of a bloody conflict, but, as one of the Administration's key foreign policy spokesmen in Congress put it:

"I warned Finnish representatives last November, even before hostilities began, they must expect this conclusion to any war with Russia."

"I told them peace could better be made then than later, and warned them they would receive little outside help."

"I told them that the only United States aid they could hope for would be a non-military loan."

The only State Department comment was reiteration that U. S. diplomatic representatives had no part in negotiating the peace.

The belief prevailed meanwhile that the peace accord would not affect the recent $20,000,000 loan to Finland by the Export-Import Bank, but would enable the money to be used in reconstructing the war-torn country.

Finns Blame Their Defeat On Swedish Bar to Troops

Beginning Friday, the Finnish troops will retreat at the rate of seven kilometers (about 4.5 miles) a day to narrowed frontiers fixed by the treaty signed at Moscow last night.

The treaty still was subject to formal ratification by the Finnish Diet within three days.

It was officially announced this afternoon that War Minister Juho Niuukanen and Minister of Education Uno Hannula had resigned from the government because they opposed accepting the Russian terms.

FORCED TO YIELD

Foreign Minister Valio Tanner declared the terms to the Finnish people in a broadcast today, demanding Finland was forced to capitulate. The head of the Finnish army, Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, was scheduled to speak to the nation tonight. He said Kyösti Kallio will speak tomorrow.

Tanner in his radio address declared Finland was forced to yield because she lacked arms and "had no faith in the promises of others to aid in the unequal struggle against a foe 60 times her size," Tanner said in his broadcast.

Great Britain and France yesterday offered to send 50,000 troops to Finland, but, Tanner said, "the only possible route was through Norway and Sweden, who refused to let the troops through. This refusal proved an unsurmountable obstacle."

"Thus Finland was left alone to face an enemy of superior numbers,"

He highly praised the conduct of Finnish southern defenders saying their feat were "astonishing beyond expectations" but reinforcements were lacking.

The public—which reacted to the news with numb bewilderment—was flustered by Tanner.

GOVERNMENT TO CHANGE

"The home front acted beautifully and the people's morale was phenomenal," he said, "under almost daily bombing attacks and other hardships of war."

Tanner said the government would change to meet the new situation. He said the new government would be formed by the Diet within three days.

"The surrender is not our fault," he said, "it is the fault of our being isolated by our fellow democrats."

Tanner said the new government would be formed by the Diet within three days. He said the new government would be formed by the Diet within three days.

UNEXPECTEDLY SEVERE

Tanner described the terms of peace as "unexpectedly severe" and much more severe than those demanded by the Soviet Union last autumn.

"Our representatives tried to bring the negotiations to modify the terms, but in vain," he said.

"The peace will be a heavy one," he added, "and our future possibilities of defense will be restricted."

He added, however, "Finland will once more arise to be a vital state and its people will find a means of sustenance."

Of the peace, Tanner said "What kind of peace?" Tanner asked. "A severely wounded nation is surrendering important industrial and agricultural territories."

This, said the foreign minister, creates new responsibilities and makes a new building program necessary. He called for a united action to carry out the reconstruction.

"We have risen from ruin before," he declared. "We have plenty of land left."

"The united front is needed just surely during peace as war."

"There is the foundation for a new dawn for our nation in the future."

Hints Allies Led Finns Into War

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—In the midst of heated debate in Commons today on the Finnish-Russian peace, William Gal-lacher, the only Communist member, declared a settlement of the Finnish question could have been reached in November "without bloodshed if it had not been for outside pressure"—by implication that of Britain and France.

Shouts of "No!" came from various sides of the House.

250,000 Reds, 30,000 Finns Slain in War

COPENHAGEN, March 13 (AP)—Foreign military observers today estimated the Finnish-Russian war had cost at least 250,000 casualties, half of them dead.

These sources divided the losses this way:

RUSSIA—Approximately 250,000 dead and 250,000 wounded.

FINLAND—30,000 dead and 35,000 wounded.

The abnormally high percentage of war dead was attributed to the bitter cold weather in which most of the war was fought. Many deaths were from freezing after wounds which otherwise would not have been fatal.

One Danish newspaper correspondent today reported Finnish casualties on the Karelian isthmus front alone were 30,000, including 2000 young Finnish officers.

(An International News Service dispatch from Helsinki says the Soviet official estimate of Finland's war dead is 250,000.)

Balkan States See Hope

BELGRADE, March 13 (AP)—The Balkan states today saw hope in the Finnish peace treaty, which they believed would lead to a general settlement of the European war.

Yugoslav officials were confident that the treaty would lead to a general settlement of the European war.

Rumanian officials were confident that the treaty would lead to a general settlement of the European war.

The southernmost neutral countries appeared generally agreed Germany was trying to keep this area peaceful and productive but that war would have extended quickly to southeastern Europe if the Allies had fought Russia in Europe.

News of the Finnish peace was received happily in Bulgaria, where there is strong pro-Russian feeling.

Yugoslav newspapers described the peace as "a blow for the Allies."

British Leader Warns Nation

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—Sir John Simon today warned the nation against "letting away our energies discussing elaborate plans for a new Europe" while the actual fighting was not yet over.

He said the future in which there would be no room for all, including Germany, was not a desirable one.

The chief of the exchequer addressed a meeting of the National Club.

He spoke of the Russian-Finnish peace, saying that the northern European situation had "developed tragically" in the last few days.

ALLIES SET FOR ATTACK

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—Great Britain and France, weighing the effects of a Russian-Finnish peace, prepared themselves for an intensification of their own war and for a possible combined Nazi-Soviet offensive against allied interests in the Balkans.

Moscow's announced intent of a treaty with Finland, ostensibly freeing Russia's resources to support the war machine of her economic ally, may mean a Nazi offensive in the west.

London and Paris received reports from Bucharest that Germany and Russia were planning to offer Rumania territorial gain in exchange for trade concessions. British and French officials declined to comment, pending action of the Finnish Diet (Parliament) on the reported peace treaty but the settlement, coming on the heels of the Allies' proposed willingness to intervene in Finland, had its effect in both camps.

Some observers tried to portray Scandinavia as "the crown of the piece" through which to draw Allied reinforcements, but the German and Russian moves were seen as a direct challenge to the Allies' proposed intervention.

"The outcome of the Scandinavian situation will affect the passage of a treaty and was decisive," said the London Daily Express.

A German move, however, quoted most keenly by press as a direct challenge to the Allies' proposed intervention.

That the Russian-Finnish armistice would lead to a general settlement of the European war, a view held by many observers, was evident in London.

Welles, Britons Again Confer

LONDON, March 13 (INS)—Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles conferred today with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax at the British premier's No. 10 Downing street residence.

The conference, called out in the presence of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, was considered of vital importance since it marks Welles' second meeting with the last of the government heads of Europe's three belligerent countries.

President Roosevelt's peace overtures earlier this week, the old Lloyd George plan and the conversation lasted so long that Welles was forced to return to his quarters for the rest of the day.

Nazis See Turks Next After Finns

By PIERRE J. HUSS

BERLIN, March 13 (INS).—A prediction that Turkey and other small nations of the so-called Anglo-French bloc may alter their attitudes as a result of the Russo-Finnish peace was voiced in Germany today.

While the German press and officialdom hailed announcement of the agreement as a "spectacular defeat" for allied diplomacy, representing collapse of Anglo-French plans to spread the war to Scandinavia, Field Marshal Hermann Goering, German Minister of War, said in a speech today that the keynote was as follows:

"Plans of the western powers to squeeze Germany in a strategic pincer by extending the war into neutral nations to our north and southeast have now definitely failed."

"With the exception of England and France there is no power in the Balkans today which desires conflict."

"There remains only the Anglo-Turkish agreement—so far uncancelled—which, as the Russo-Finnish war has proved, Turkey apparently entered under false presumptions."

"Now that Russia has shown her readiness for peace, Turkey will be watched with interest."

"Europe will see whether she finds her way back to her traditional natural friendship with Russia."

"Now, at the beginning of spring, the French and British are facing the concentrated and well-prepared striking power of the German army, which the Allies have failed to split up by extension of battlefields."

Authentic Berlin quarters contended that the peace treaty will stabilize the situation in northern Europe. In addition, they said, it marks an "irrefutable verdict against the empty promises of Britain and France and establishes the fact that small neutral nations are turning their backs upon London and Paris."

Terms of the Russo-Finnish peace were described by a government spokesman as "commensurate with the sacrifices made by Russia to guard her lebensraum."

Finland Weeps Over Peace

HELSINKI, March 13 (INS).—Black-bordered extra editions of Finnish newspapers, flags flying at half-mast and a fearful radio broadcast by Foreign Minister Valio Tanner told the people of Finland today that their heroic war of existence against Soviet Russia had come to an end on the Kremlin's own terms.

Even after Tanner had concluded his broadcast and announcement was made that President Kyösti Kallio himself would speak to the nation later, the people found it hard to believe. The streets were filled with weeping men and women who had read the black-rimmed newspapers with unbellying eyes.

REDS SEE FINN PEACE AS DEFEAT OF BRITAIN

tween Russia and Norway and no restriction on passage of Russian citizens or commerce across the area;

A promise that no Finnish warplanes, warships or submarines, except for small coast guard boats, will operate in the Arctic ocean.

WHAT FINNS GET

In return, the Finns get peace and a yearly rental of 8,000,000 Finnish markka (about $120,000) for Hanko.

They must negotiate a trade-treaty and make a non-aggression alliance with Russia. (Russia denounced the previous non-aggression pact just before invading Finland Nov. 30.)

Russia's original demands, which the Finns had refused, were much less severe. They offered Finland part of Soviet Karelia, on Finland's long eastern border in return for a small strip of the Karelian Isthmus northwest of Leningrad; a lease on Hanko, part of the Sredni and Rybachii peninsula, and exchange of some islands in the gulf of Finland.

The new, drastically-revised frontiers are outlined in a map appended to the treaty, but detailed determination is provided by a mixed commission to be formed within 10 days.

REDS' RICH PRIZE

Listed specifically in the treaty as concessions to Russia are the towns of Sortavala, Suoyarvi and Kakislampi north and west of Lake Ladoga; the territory east of Mar-kajarvi near the Arctic Circle, and the town of Kuolajarvi on the Salla front.

These localities have figured in the war news in connection with reports of smashing Finnish victories over the invading Red army.

The lease on Hanko also would include a number of nearby islands and the adjacent waters, the Finns to withdraw within 10 days.

The Arctic Petsamo area, occupied by Russian troops, is to be relinquished to Finland, with the provision that Finland will establish no military or naval bases in the Arctic and that Finnish warships there must not exceed 15 of 400 tons each and any number of 100 tons or less.

FINNS GIVE RAILROAD

The Finns would have to build during 1940 a railroad from Kemi-jarvi to the Russian border to connect with a Russian line to be built from Kandalakska.

(As the border is now drawn, two-thirds of this 150-mile distance is in Finland.)

This route would connect with the present railroad from Kemi-jarvi to the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, and the treaty provides the right of Russian transit over it to Sweden.

The treaty would restore automatically trade relations between Finland and the Soviet Union, with a formal trade pact to be negotiated.

Non-aggression is provided in the following clause:

"Both contracting parties undertake mutually to refrain from any attack upon each other, not to conclude any alliances and not to participate in any coalitions against one of the contracting parties."

Thus, official Soviet news agency, said the treaty was signed Tuesday, superseding its previous report that six days of negotiation were concluded at 2:30 a. m. Wednesday.

It listed signatories as Premier Foreign-Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet Presidium Member Andrei A. Zhdanov and Brigade Commander Alexander Mikhailovich Vasilevsky for Russia, and by Premier Risto Ryti, Juhani Paasikivi, Gen. Karl Rudolf Walden and Prof. Valio Voionmaa, for Finland.

POSIES, BEER AND TROUT

Dear Sir—Against the background of war and winter the Flower Show marches in to steal the spotlight. That's a fine start. Next comes bock beer, trout fishing and sanity.

ALLEN FRAYNE

(Ed. Note: The flower show is the best yet. Can't speak for the bock beer, but Dark Montreal will be back with his fishing column on April 14.)

MUCK TRIBUTE

Dear Sir—Let me note that regardless of what you chose to say about Dr. Karl Muck, the Boston Symphony Orchestra paid him a life tenure.

HITLER WAS RIGHT

(Ed. Note: Boston Symphony's tribute was to Dr. Muck as an artist, which he was.)

IDEAL MATE

Dear Editor—My ideal mate is still tall, dark and handsome as he was when I married him 30 years ago but those qualities have been dimmed by finer ones—his honesty, his kindness, his faithfulness. Lucky the woman who gets these along with her tall, dark and handsome.

MRS. R. K. L., PLYMOUTH

Dear Sir: The Ideal Mate would be deaf, dumb and blind—deaf so he could hear no evil spoken of his wife, dumb so he could never nag about the burned bacon and blind so he couldn't see the lady when

Lupien Abolishes Job O'Neil Held

State Civil Service Director Ulysse J. Lupien today announced the post of chief examiner of that department from which James E. O'Neil will retire on May 1.

Lupien denied, at the same time, he had quarreled with O'Neil, a caterer man with 19 years' service in the department.

His denial was taken lightly at the State House, however, with reports still persisting that O'Neil's request to Gov. Sullivan for retirement on a pension of $2500 a year came only after the Civil Service Commission had requested it.

F. D. STILL CONFINED

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt, suffering from a slight head cold, remained in the White House proper again today, on advice of his physician, Rear-Admiral Ross T. McIntire.

HONOR was paid Corporation Counsel Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston, left, when Carl Alpert pinned on him the pink carnation of the Jewish Advocate. The Advocate characterized Parkman as "a man of character, integrity, great personal quality; one who has, on numerous occasions, proven his devotion to the fundamental processes of democracy and who has gone out of his way to afford fair play and justice."

Victims of Red incendiary bombs, buildings in Viipuri, Finland's second largest city, part of the horror of the three-and-a-half months war.

As the Red inn war raged, Finland repeatedly set back Russian onslaughts with the result that much material was captured.

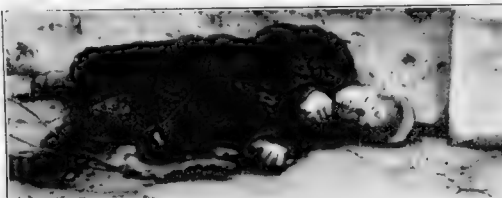

Dead Men... Silent Gns—Guns lie dead and under barrels... but, from the Soviet viewpoint, they did not die in vain—for Russia was able to take huge, important stretches of Finnish territory.

With only few men, with few tanks, Finland was able to split... and Helsinki... No this.

By Red planes! So, tiny Finland faced the deadly might of the Russian bear... until now, the small republic is forced to accept staggering peace terms... giving up more cities and lands than the Soviet demanded before the war began.

Typical of the wholesale slaughter of Finnish civilians by Red bombers is this photograph showing the streets of Viipuri after a Russian raid.

THE NEELY BILL, which has received the approval of the United States Senate and which now awaits action by the House of Representatives, is just another measure to regulate business by politicians who know nothing about business.

The legislation, in brief, seeks to prohibit "block booking" and "blind selling," two terms which cover conventional trade practices in the motion picture industry.

Block booking means that the major film companies offer theaters not one picture at a time, but an appreciable portion of their production.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY
Condemns Neely Bill

What they do not say is that small, obscure independent companies, which the Neely Bill proposes to help, are the chief producers of this type of entertainment.

They say the bill will stop the showing of pictures theater-goers do not want to see.

What they do not say is that under the present system all exhibitors have liberal censorial privileges.

If Neely Bill backers examine existing contracts more thoroughly, they will discover that major producers do not make pictures which might be termed objectionable from a moral standpoint and that if an exhibitor does not wish to play a certain picture, HE IS NOT COMPELLED TO DO SO.

Public patronage, NOT THE NEELY BILL, determines the kind of films theaters show.

If Representatives are really representative, they should amend the Neely Bill before they vote unwisely and thereby give the country another sad experience with a Prohibition that does not prohibit.

Two hours' reading ought to be enough to convince any intelligent law-maker that the proposed law will do these seven undesirable things:

1—Increase the cost of making motion pictures.
2—Boost the expense of selling them.
3—Greatly add to the charges of exhibition.
4—Skyrocket budgets of producers, distributors and exhibitors, and eventually raise entertainment admission prices.
5—Create a larger market for morally bad pictures by eliminating many good pictures.
6—Destroy a substantial part of the excellent work of the Legion of Decency and its co-operating organizations.
7—Lower the quality of all film production and adversely affect the standards of the theaters themselves.

Let government keep its hands off business and its internal, customary and entirely legitimate economic differences.

Let government HELP BUSINESS, instead of trying continually to HAMSTRING IT.

There is too much money, too much employment, too much public service and popular enjoyment in motion pictures, for this great industry to be the political football of bureaucrats.

Robert Montgomery, popular film player and president of the Screen Actors' Guild, was never more right than when he denounced the Neely Bill as "A GRAVE MENACE."

PATRICIA HAWKINS is an American child, fourteen years old. She lives in El Monte, Cal., and attends Union High School there. Recently, her school conducted an essay contest on the subject "What It Means to Be an American."

And from this child came a statement of patriotic faith that in simplicity and earnestness is superior to many a formal oration by the politically learned.

"I am an American. In America I am an individual . . . We learn and build . . . Already I feel the ideal democracy lies within the shaping of my hands and those of other youth. I can face my ambitions with the faith that I will have opportunity to contribute toward civilization's advancement . . ."

"Cannot the mighty American creed be summed up in these three simple words: Broadmindedness, Courage and Faith? I think so and I am glad."

It is heartening to realize there are hundreds of Patricias who every smart-alecky adolescent who prattles about radicalism.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 13—I had no space yesterday to tell you about the party given on Saturday night by the Women's National Press Club. There were a great number of distinguished guests, ranging from Gracie Allen, the first lady to throw her hat into the ring as a Presidential candidate; to the wives of Cabinet members; Miss Frances Perkins, the Secretary of Labor; and various representatives from the halls of Congress and of the Government.

MISS ROSA PONSELLE opened the evening by singing "The Star Spangled Banner" with the Marine Band. Then we sat down to a delightful dinner at tables decorated with the gayest red tulips. The arrangement of the tables this year was excellent, for no one had to move in order to see the show that followed.

It seemed to me that the show moved faster and more smoothly than ever before. The lines were clever and I spent an entertaining and delightful evening. The spirit behind the show seemed kinder than ever before and it left me rather little to combat when, at the end, I had the opportunity to speak the last word. So, as often happens, soft words were followed by soft words and we parted in a most amiable mood.

As always happens when I start out on a short trip like this, I find myself very hurried on the last day. However, I managed to spend an hour in the morning Monday walking around the Basin. The only sign of spring was a great number of young people hiring bicycles to go off into the country. There wasn't a bud on the cherry trees, for I walked along under them and gazed at each one hopefully. A good many people came to lunch, among them Mr. Leopold Stokowski, who came to tell us of his prospective trip with an orchestra drawn from the ranks of N. Y. A. youth. He says it is going to be a fine orchestra and he is about to begin his tour around the country to make his final choices of those who are to go with him.

He envisions this as a musical awakening for the United States, and an international force for good-will throughout the world. Our interest and good wishes are with him in one of the most interesting projects carried on by any individual in the country today.

WHILE WE are talking about art, I want to tell you about something new that has come to my attention, a new form of art developed by a young American, Floyd M. Nichols, born in Brooklyn, but growing up in Davis City, Neb.

A devotee from boyhood of Western life, he became first a commercial welder, but now has developed an art of his own. It is a new medium of sculpture and uses welding tools and many types of metals in the making of diminutive statuettes dealing with the life of the Old West. When I return, I hope to see them.

HOPKINS WILL MEET ECONOMISTS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 13—Within the next few days Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins will announce plans for a conference with economists for the leading business firms of America to compare notes. . . . CHRISTOPHER MORLEY: That dispute you've been having with foreign literary agents concerning the percentage of royalties for the sale of "Kitty Foyle" in Italy now is academic. The Italian Government has banned the sale of that book. . . . LAUREL & HARDY: A new comedy team soon will start using the name "Laurel & Hardy" for a vaudeville tour, and you won't be able to stop them—because they're using their real names. The team will be composed of the wives you recently divorced—Leana Laurel & Madelyn Hardy.

SAM GOLDWYN: John Barrymore is entitled to some of the credit for the success of "Wuthering Heights," the movie for which the Film Critics Circle awarded its prize to you this year. . . . During the estrangement between Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, Charlie MacArthur sat with John and asked him about the romance. Barrymore used the most eloquent phrases to describe his yearning for Elaine. . . . And so MacArthur incorporated these burning love passages in the script he and Ben Hecht wrote for "Wuthering Heights." . . . DRAMATISTS GUILD: John Gunther, author of "Inside Europe" and "Inside Asia," now is writing a play. . . . MARTIN MANTON: Lepke Buchalter, whom you once released on bail—which resulted in his becoming a fugitive for more than two years—is expected to join you at Lewisburg Penitentiary, but not for long. Prison officials insist that, despite F. B. I. promises, their recommendations will not prevail—hell eventually spend his Federal term at Alcatraz. . . . HEYWOOD HALE BROWN: Your father's famed flask for which you bid at the Brown auction now belongs to Carl, the waiter at "21." Joe Brooks, whose bid was highest, gave it to him.

LUCIUS BEEBE: All the articles written about Oscar Levant describe him as a slovenly dresser. As a matter of fact, Oscar at one time was among New York's best-dressed men. That was when he was younger and unknown. . . . He'd go to London every year, and his tailor there would make five new suits for him annually. He had money, but few people knew about him. . . . Now that he's become famous he hasn't as much money and has no time for tailoring.

LEANA LAUREL

EXCLUSIVE: On the issue of a third term, the spectacular political flight of Democratic Copilots Franklin D. Roosevelt and James A. Farley has grounded. . . . Nor will it be resumed until too late in 1940 for the continued success in political life of the two men, working as a combination. . . . Postmaster-General Farley is in the Democratic battle for the presidential nomination to win. . . . He is neither a stalking-horse, nor a straw candidate. . . . Here is the situation as it exists today, and as it will exist, according to the Postmaster General, when the Democrats meet in Chicago in July to name a standard-bearer:

FARLEY FIRED THE FIRST SHOT in his campaign in Massachusetts when he gave Chairman William H. Burke of the Democratic State Committee authority to file a slate of candidates pledged to James A. Farley. . . . (That move, foretold in this space two days before it was announced officially, was made yesterday). . . . The second barrage will be laid down in Massachusetts, too. . . . It will be a speech by Candidate Farley, himself, at a dinner in his honor to be held in Boston, probably at the Copley-Plaza, sometime in April. . . . In the speech, Postmaster-General Farley will confirm our opening statement in today's column, namely, that the third term issue is the major reason for his inability to see eye-to-eye with the President.

MOREOVER, IF HE FEELS that he may divulge the President's present plans without breaking confidence, the Postmaster-General will explain to the leaders of the party here the simple facts of his own position and the reasons why he cannot reconcile his viewpoint with that of the man he now calls "Chief." . . . Mr. Farley may not touch on the President's plans at all, and may confine himself to an expression of his fear that a third term would result surely in a fourth term, and a fourth term in a possible fifth. . . . Such a string of terms compresses the prospect into the one hateful un-American word, "dictator," the Postmaster-General feels. . . . On this issue chiefly, as we have said, rested Mr. Farley's grave choice to go it on his own.

IT IS NO SECRET that the Postmaster-General long has greeted the so-called "palace guard," particularly the "Frankfort boys," with mingled disgust, dislike and fear. . . . (It is NOT a personal fear, we are assured, but a dread of their possible influence in steering the President along what Mr. Farley regards as paths of action dangerous to the country). . . . But it is believed he will avoid mention of an "pinkish" influence in high places in Washington, because, after all, Mr. Farley is a strong "party man," and the Republicans will hammer with all batteries on the allegedly roseate hue of some of the Capital departments. . . . (Frank Gannett took a slap at the "Bolsheviks" yesterday, but all Republican candidates are seizing this platform for their respective planks).

GARY COOPER SEEN LOSING BIG ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

GARY COOPER

HOLLYWOOD, March 13—The Frank Capra deal with Warner Brothers sounds fantastic yet from an excellent source comes word that Frank is getting $200,000 for his "The Life of John Doe" plus 50 per cent of the gross. Wow! That, my friends, is real money. It looks like Gary Cooper, who would give half of his salary to play in the Capra picture, may be denied the privilege because Sam Goldwyn, who owns his contract, hasn't yet given his consent. In case Sam continues to hold out Frank will test an unknown which would mean that a new star will be born.

WOOD: Frances Farmer, who carried the torch so long for Clifford Odets, is happy once again with Norman Bates. Also a writer; Buddy Weseloh had dinner with Rosemary Lane last Sunday, at Mama's invitation and now all is well. Lola Lane's smiles are for Bill Marshall since she and Dick Pinner said adieu; Sally Humes, Bert Wheeler's ex, and Lois Lindsey, a cozy twosome at the Spinnex Club. That reminds me, Lloyd Fantages is master of ceremonies every Sunday at the night spot and doing a knockout.

Greg Bautzer is leaving Elaine Shepard about this week; Marlene Dietrich and John Barrant dining tete-a-tete at Cafe; Olivia De Havilland and Rajad Hakim, French producer, sitting at an adjoining table. Also Frank Freeman, Jr., and Jeanne Cagney. Ha Gable's hat, made entirely of hyacinths, much admired at the B. B. Robinson cocktail party. Those flower chapeaux seem to be all the style and Jane Winton, in whose honor the party was given, wore one that looked like a huge nosegay; Glen Ford, Columbia's new tall, dark and handsome, and Lynn Blythe, Earl Carroll girl, an item; Billie Burke, the charming flutterer, manages to remain calm over news she is a grandmother, with daughter Patricia receiving visit from stork.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

THE MAN walked about the room like a caged beast. Slowly he turned, walked to the heavily barred window and looked out. Inky blackness!

In reality he was young, but a worried frown and a queer shifting look made him seem years older. He lighted a cigarette, but crushed it out instantly. A glance at his watch showed five minutes to 12. Suddenly he was startled from this nervous dilemma by a uniformed guard who remarked that it was time to leave.

HIS FEET felt like dead weights. His tongue seemed to have a queer coating which rendered him speechless. There was a funny tight feeling in his throat, and his ears echoed and resounded with the hammer-like beating of his heart.

"Our Father who art in—" The rest of the prayer was lost to him, for the prisoners had started the death chant. His eyes suddenly focused on the little green door at the end of the corridor.

This was the death chamber through whose walls many souls had fled to their Creator. Slowly a guard pushed the door open. The procession filed in. The door was slowly closed.

A maze of people slowly assembled themselves in his mind. There in the corner, shrouded in the murky haze, sat reporters watching for unusual events which, especially coming from a death house, always thrilled readers. On the right-hand side were witnesses, most of whom were shaken by what they were about to see in the line of duty.

Strange that even the older guards were nervous beneath their efficient exterior.

AND THERE in a little room, filled with all sorts of electrical gadgets, stood the executioner looking very business-like, for after all this was his business. A look in the corner caused great beads of perspiration to stand out on his brow. There, casting eerie shadows on the wall behind it, stood the grim avenger—the wired chair used to carry out the Biblical adage, "An eye for an eye."

Watching from the corner of his eye he saw the lean hand of doom reach for the current switch. It had tightened lingeringly about the handle. Then the man faintly. The man in the chair sneered and said, "I'm dying and the warden faints. That's one for the books."

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

YOU DON'T THINK there's any plan to life, or any purpose. You think you're just an accident—a phoney deal—that you were born with all the breaks against you. And you're having a swell fit of pouts.

What a bad bill of goods you're selling yourself!

I've been sitting here watching a little spider. The little spider is as big as the head of a large-sized pin. It is hanging from the ceiling of my room. It is hanging my almost invisible silk thread which it has drawn from its own body.

To you, sitting, pouting there, that spider is a nothin' and a nothin'. It is unworthy of your vast human notice. You could smash it with your thumb. It has no relation to your intricate problems. Guess again! Stop being a dope and watch that spider!

THE SPIDER is climbing on the silken thread. It is throwing out another thread. It is making a web. It is spinning a web that is as amazing and as astounding in its engineering principles as the bridges across San Francisco Bay or the planes that fly to Europe. The Queen Mary in all her tremendous and intricate mechanism is not more remarkable than this web.

In the delicate pattern which the little spider weaves there are all the fundamental principles of architecture and engineering; all the provisions for stresses and strains which the most scientific modern mind can vision.

The greatest engineering brains which the human race has produced do not hold more knowledge of construction than this little spider holds.

AND YET YOU THINK A SPIDER IS ONLY A SPIDER. YOU THINK A SPIDER JUST HAPPENED. YOU THINK THERE IS NOTHING BEHIND THE SPIDER—OR YOU.

WHAT A DOPE you are to watch a marvel like that and think it could just happen. What a dope you are to watch the intricate design of life and think it's an accident.

Do you not see that every blade of grass is a miracle; that every spider web shouts the glory and wonder and everlasting wisdom of Jehovah?

And you, who are His greatest handiwork—who, who surpass all the mysteries of miracles He has put into His handiwork, you sit and pout! And say there is no God!

What a bad bill of goods you're selling yourself.

24 East Side Kids At Trans-Lux

24 EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1940

One of the screen's most humane treatments of the problems of life in the city slums, "East Side Kids" starts today at the Trans-Lux Theater with Dennis Moore, Joyce Bryant, Vince Barnett and Leon Ames in the leading roles.

The well-directed story deals with the attempts of a police lieutenant to guide a group of slum children from the influence of a notorious crime car who hopes to snare the kids with promises of easy money for the work in his counterfeiting ring.

Leon Ames plays the part of a cop who believes that the slum youths should be set straight and not straight to the big house. Opposite him is the talented blonde Joyce Bryant.

Dennis Moore, as the gangster, gives one of his most convincing performances and the expert comedy is furnished by that old reliable Vince Barnett.

On the same program the Trans-Lux will present "My Son Is Guilty," which is one of the most unusual dramas of the current season. Bruce Cabot, Jacqueline Wells, Harry Carey and Wynne Gibson are in the featured roles.

HEDY LAMARR, who stars with Spencer Tracy in "I Take This Woman," which opens tomorrow on the Metropolitan screen. She plays the part of a seductive woman in whose arms "nothing could matter."

SO WE COME TO THE PRESIDENT'S PLANS—which Mr. Farley may or may not discuss in the dinner planned in his honor a week or two before the State goes to the polls to elect delegates to the conventions... What are the President's plans?... It may not be "cricket" for the Postmaster-General to reveal them—he may feel, but your correspondent knows that these plans are, to the best knowledge of Mr. Farley, as follows:

F. D. R. WILL STAND by while the convention is in progress, ready to speed to Chicago the minute he hears that Roosevelt has been nominated by "unanimous acclamation."

Arriving at Chicago, the President will make an entrance between lines of cheering delegates... Then, whether his course of action is already plotted or not, the President will go into a huddle with leaders of the party and prospective candidates... They will then choose a candidate to submit to the convention... The candidate may be Franklin Delano Roosevelt?... As a matter of pure speculation, can you imagine any party leader or prospective candidate demurring from such a choice in the face of any such mob-scene of cheering delegates and the spirit of such exaltation which will be prevailing at the moment?... Mr. Farley might demur... Chances are, if the convention turns him down, he will be among those absent.

THIS IS THE FARLEY-ROOSEVELT STORY as it exists at this writing... Confirmation of much of it will come when Mr. Farley in person faces the guests at a dinner in his honor in Boston sometime in April... Something else will be accomplished with the staging of the proposed Farley dinner... It will relieve the Postmaster-General of the responsibility of stating his position of "talking politics" when he addresses a Wellesley College gathering March 20... His daughter is a student at Wellesley.

Mandi was once wedded to the glamorous Hedy Lamarr and bore the Hitler regime controlled the munitions plants in Vienna. Unlike many of the Austrians he managed to get his money out of the country and invest it in South America where he is now living in affluence.

His purpose in coming to Hollywood at this time is to finance deal. Szekely learned his movies from Alexander Korda in Vienna and more recently he was associated with Mussolini's film company, for whom he produced "La Mavadra's last Italian movie. So far Mandl has no releasing plans but I hear he is negotiating with Columbia and RKO. With all the money he is reported to have he should have no trouble in making a tie-up.

Hollywood Notes—Hedy Lamarr has cut her famous bangs. Not since Mary Pickford sheared her curls and Greta Garbo talked has there been as much excitement on the M-G-M lot. Hedy did it all for her art—making a role in "Eodem Town." She does not play her usual siren role and because the long hair was out of order she consented to have it cut. Now I wonder whether her imitators will do the same or continue wearing the distinctive Lamarr bob.

ALICE FAYE is suffering from what you might term the divorce jitters. She's had the worse cases of nerves, sort of an aftermath of her decision to divorce Tony Martin, and because of her state of mind, "Lillian Russell," which is within two weeks of being finished, will be called off temporarily, as far as Alice is concerned. There will be dance rehearsals in the interim to give her a chance to get back her equilibrium. Her divorce comes up Monday and as someone on the Fox lot said, she won't be worth a nickel on that day or for a week after. So rather than have her report for work while she is still jittery, she's been given a week to get herself in shape.

BOY INTO MAN

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By ANTHONY
RUD

The Principal Character In "Boy Into Man"

JACK ANDERSON, who wins a scholarship while in prep, goes to college and becomes so engrossed in athletics and social life that he fails to study—and almost forgets his sacrificing parents.

no one ever could live down, Jack felt.

Personally, Jack was frat material no doubt of it. Six feet two inches in height, rangily strong, fast on his feet as most big men, with clear blue eyes that knew how to laugh easily—well, he was homely-handsome, without personal vanity, and a good mixer.

His room-mate, Lou Whitcomb, was a drab, hard-working cuss, good enough to get along with, but without any social life in him.

He wrote home for more money, and received a very little additional. Then he shrugged. "It was my to run bills at the college ones, up to fairish amounts. You had to pay all bills by the end of the year, if you wanted to stay in."

It caused Jack quite a little prattle worry, that his quiz marks and these marks did not reach the same heights they had done in prep school. What was wrong? By C's, D's and even a sordid in the physics hour exam?

THE HARSH TRUTH
The truth was that Jack had become something of a half-fellow-fell-met with his own classmates. Few suspected the lurking shadow of bills which made Jack himself own a little at times—then discuss the matter with a shrug. After all, this was college. A truly big part of the whole thing was the social life. It looked to Jack as though fraternities were just about the biggest things in all college life. He had been approached privately by three men from different chapters. There was not supposed to be any active bidding until after the first of February. Not to be bid to a frat would constitute a social disgrace which whatever. He had no hopes of making a frat, and no money to spend on one if the astonishing happened, and one of the twenty-four societies bid him. But Lou was getting better than fair marks in his subjects. He was well out of danger of flunking any course.

On the tenth of December, two days before the beginning of the Christmas recess, Dean Murdoch sent for Jack.

"Look here, my lad," said the spectacled man crisply, though with a certain wary kindness. "You came here an honor man. I suppose you know that with the marks you are getting today, your scholarship will lapse." In fact you stand in grave danger of being separated from college."

"I—" he began and stopped. "I'll do better, sir!" he finally managed to gasp, and fled. But once back in his room, he was inclined to feel sulky and resentful. Shucks, he'd like to study harder, but just where in the world did a fellow get the time?

Jack's friends in large number lived in or near New York. He made tentative vacation dates to visit them, to go to burlesque shows, movie broadcasts, dances, the night spots of Greenwich Village and 52nd st., out to see girls one or another chap highly recommended.

Then, with his class numerated bulldog pipe, his polo coat, and his new trunk suitcase—bought on credit—Jack Anderson came home. And the shock of it overturned and smashed to bits the carefully artificial world of make-believe in which he had been living.

"ABSOLUTELY FIAT"
He was shocked speechless to see the dingy rooms his parents had taken. Good heavens, the five-room apartment had been had enough, but here his mother and father actually had to sleep on twin cots in the living room! If they had retired—as they usually did at 10:30 in the evening—he could not even bring friends into the place!

Not that he would have wanted to. Not his college friends, certainly. He had a bedroom for himself, but it was tiny. And both his father and mother looked as though the world had flattened them terribly. Jack began to wonder whether he was going to be able to get enough spending money so he could fulfil even a part of the engagements he had made for the vacation.

His father soon smashed every illusion. "Sorry, son," he said quietly, when Jack braced him for a twenty to start with. "What with paying life insurance, and your tuition and board and room rent—with the little we have sent

It was a farce of a Christmas. The five dollars and the two new ties Jack received from his parents, made him catch his breath in bitter derision. What a life! Now he knew that when he returned, he could not hope to join a frat. Worse than that, the eighty or ninety dollars he owed at college shops, would be pressed as bills at the end of the semester. Then, why go back?

Through the vacation days he stalked alone, a martyr in his own eyes. Then on the night of New Year's Day, it happened. Even the food had been queer and scarce.

"I can't get it fixed until the fifteenth!" came the low, wretched voice of his mother.

Jack came in scowling at ten, and went back to his room. An hour later he heard some one crying softly. Frowning, he opened his door and listened.

"I can't get it fixed until the fifteenth!" came the low, wretched voice of his mother.

"Nonsense. Take this quarter and have it done in the morning. You can't go down barefoot to see Jack on his way."

Holding his breath in sheer amazement, the lad heard more. "You were going to get a shaving stick."

"Or, well, honey, it won't hurt me to shave another week with regular soap. My face is tough."

In the morning, after a staring, sleepless night, Jack found out that his mother had broken a heel from her only shoes. White and stricken he offered to take the shoes out and get them fixed. He still had three dollars left of the Christmas five.

Her brown eyes incredulous, then suddenly misting over, she let him. The father had gone to work by then. But Jack, thinking of his own tubes of cream and face lotion, swore lustily under his breath. He brought back with him a shaving stick. "For Dad," he said brusquely, tossing it on the table.

When the mother clutched him convulsively, seeing love and glory as a reward for sacrifice, Jack Anderson was holding her in his arms and looking over her head out of the window of the walk-up flat. He did not visualize any glory. There was too much bitter hard work ahead for that.

A CHANGED BOY
It is not to be supposed that he became a patagon, overnight. When the first of February came, though, he passed all five subjects, two of them with B's. And he had a job, part-time encaustic for the family of the college president. He had told his frat friends quietly that he could not afford membership. So on bidding day no one stood outside his dormitory door. Three of the college shops were getting one dollar a week each, and if things went well, Jack hoped to triple this increment.

They did go well. The president, a wealthy man in his own right, decided to have student chauffeurs on the place all the while. So Jack and another young man were offered five dollars a week apiece, and a refund on that had been paid in for dormitory room.

Jack's eyes were shining when he sat down to write the first letter home after that happened.

"Dear Mother, (he wrote). "Got 94 on my physics hour quiz. Ain't that somethin'? They say it's the hardest course in school, except maybe Chem 3. "Thanks for your check for carfare home for Easter. I'm sending it back herewith—and hoping Mother can use it to buy shoes and a hat. I want her to look nice when I see her. I'm driving Mrs. Prexy and her two daughters down for Easter services at the Cathedral of St. John, and we'll stay over a couple days. I'll be able to get away tomorrow to see you and Dad. And gosh am I hungry to see you!"

"All my college bills are paid. Next year I won't need any money from home. I'm going to drive all summer for Prexy; and I'll get ten a week and all expenses. With my scholarship, and the regular job I have now for the regular year."

"They've been after me again about frats, but I don't think so. I'm hoping to get time enough to try out for football, but that will take every minute I can spare. College certainly is the greatest fun of anything I've ever tackled. Thanks a lot, Ma, for knowing I'd get to understand."

"All my love, to you and Dad. "JACK."

To the faded little woman back in the dingy walk-up apartment on Jane st., reading and re-reading that short letter from her only son, was the highest point that life could possibly attain. And even the gruff, disappointed father, arms closely about her as she wept her joy, looked out of the high window and saw a world that had changed tremendously for the better.

THE END
You will enjoy Frederick Arnold Kummer's story on this page tomorrow. It's called "C. O. N."

HER brown eyes incredulous, then suddenly misting over, she let him. The father had gone to work by then. But Jack, thinking of his own tubes of cream and face lotion, swore lustily under his breath. He brought back with him a shaving stick. "For Dad," he said brusquely, tossing it on the table.

26 Cooking 'Different' Sandwiches

By MARTHA LEE

HAVEN'T YOU often admired women who always seem prepared to invite people in on the way home from the show or an impromptu bridge party for a "sandwich and a cup of tea?"

These women always seem to have something in the refrigerator that will make up the extra couple of sandwiches that have appeared and are so good that they keep the appetite.

Sandwiches, it is said, have been popular for centuries, as well as for lunches at any time. This is because the modern woman has discovered that sandwiches are not only easy to make but also like being made. So, I tried to suggest some new combinations of ingredients to create new ones.

SALMON-OLIVE-NUT SANDWICHES

1 cup chopped or sliced ripe olives
1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
1/2 cup finely chopped salmon
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup cream cheese
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup pepper

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix thoroughly.

Smart Set Fashions

THE REDINGOTE ENSEMBLE gains in favor for next season... here is a very smart example of this most flattering and practical mode. A long fitted wool coat with a sunburst effect of pin tucks across the back (which you can't see) is the latest flash... providing it repeats the same these in its matching frock of rayon crepe. Note the sunburst tucking on the smooth-fabric dress, cut on simple, contour-emphasizing lines. The frock is in a harmonizing hue of the same color as the slim wool coat; the turban, in wool crepe, combines the two hues, or introduces a contrasting shade which is suggested in the gloves or other accessories, and the whole ensemble is as smart as can be... You Can Be Beautiful Colognes for All Moods

By ARLIN GOULD

WE HAVE HEARD much about this "Suit-your-perfume-to-your-type" idea; we have, moreover, lent our approval to it. But we have also heard from many of our readers the plaint: "Why is it you are no definite type, but can be several kinds of person, depending on the occasion?"

A very sound objection, we admit; for there is no doubt that the most interesting women are those who can be, depending on the situation, the quiet lady, sympathetic and kindly... the remote sophisticated, attractively mysterious lady... or the life of the party, vivacious and gay as all get out.

It doesn't mean that she is artificial either; it is just that woman is naturally adaptable, and the more socially adaptable she is, the more a well-balanced girl plays the part that suits the moment. After all, she is all of these things... and while we have to admit it, it is usually a Man (who doesn't need to be adaptable) who brings out one of the other quality.

To get to our point, we were led to this train of thought by a gift box issued by a famous beauty firm, in which there are three bottles of different scents, of their "body" colognes. The three bottles stand like sentinels in their glass, with tops of different colors so you don't even have to consult the labels to see which one to use.

The scarlet topped one is the lavender scent, for everyday use, for this firm is famous for its lavender, and you "can't go wrong" on it, the great top signifies the bottle called "Fragrance" for your gayer moments... it is "bouquet". The third bottle is topped with a violet stopper. This one is for your feminine and most seductive mood; for wear with that new evening gown, for that quiet, two-some date.

The attractive trio of bottles, packaged in a gay box suggestive of spring, costs only $1.50, and would be a most attractive Easter gift. Call Arline Gould at Liberty 4000, weekdays except Saturdays, for the name of the shop that has this attractive kit; or write her, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, for the information.

How Curiosity Killed the Cat

AUSTEN LAKE

Bradenton's Bee-hive; Or Life in the Apiary

BRADENTON, Fla., March 12.

I HAVE NEVER SEEN A TRAINING CAMP crammed with athletes, grizzled elders with tobacco bulges in their cheeks and kids with peach fuzz on their chins, gangling boys with spindly shanks, lads with hitching post legs and torsos like a Bowser wrestler—ex-plumber's helpers, apprentice machinists, indentured carpenters, farm boys; kids with the lazy burr of the South, the nasal lingo of the mid-West, the crisp chirp of New England. It's a museum of human oddities, some picked up by mail, some signed by scouts and some by second sight.

It's a strain on Manager Casey Stengel's memory, so that Case, often befuddled by names, sometimes stands behind a kid and yells, "Strinkevich," and if the boy pays no attention, he says, sotto voce, "Well, I guess that isn't Strinkevich." It's wearing on the brains, too, because there are Methkovitchs and Boehringers, and Dangenhardt and Piechotas and Wietelmanns—55 of them in all, standing around in outfield herds or clusters behind the batting cages.

There's that lad, Bill DeCarlo, a catcher from the coast, who paid $60 for an antique, arthritic Ford, drove his wife from Los Angeles to Seattle, then set his course cross country, nearly 4000 miles, arriving with fenders flapping, axles bow-legged, springs bowed with baggage and collected the full price of a de luxe Pullman passage from the club's treasurer.

AND AL PIECHOTA, "PIE" FOR SHORT, who applied for, and received, a PWA pension because he claimed he was unemployed following the baseball season at Kansas City. And George Metkovitch, who caught a catfish off the Manatee River bridge and ran its poisonous spine through his foot so that he had to be inoculated with anti tetanus. And Chet Ross, a Buffalo lad with seven baseball brothers and three soft-ball playing sisters, who married the shortstop of a champion ladies' soft ball club. And Frank Lamana, who hobbled his way. And Joe Callahan, the East Boston ex-knothole member, who still carries his newsboy's card.

Twenty-five will stay—mostly the familiar adults like Tony Cuccinello, Bill Posedel, Don French, Al Lopez, Max West, etc. By April the rest will have squirmed off to some Bee's breed farm and gather culture under the Stengel system.

You'd think that with such a conglomerate mass of human curios in one camp that Bob Quinn had gone back to his raggedy Red Sox scheme of pasturing a herd of psychopathic juniors as he did in that picturesque debut when he brought down a lot of delinquent goofies and daffy debutants like Danny MacFayden, Charley Ruffing, Jack Russell, Billy Rogell, Jack Rothrock, Billy Regan and Ed Morris to Bradenton. But compared with the Red Sox of Quinn's and Carrigan's day these Bees are models of dignity. This Spring there are no sudden midnight summons of the fire wagons to answer the whim of some kid outfielder. Elderly lady residents at the Manatee Hotel never come on any short-tail parades in the corridors, the kitchen cook doesn't have to padlock the larder, passing pedestrians can't dodge water-filled paper bags thrown from upper levels, and Bob Quinn sleeps with no headful of worries about being hauled out of bed to haul some juvenile nuisance from the town hoosegow.

STRANGE THING, TOO! STENGEL, for all his baseball wisdom, has a slight cuckoo strain and wanders around the baselines helping wackylisms to the bleacher crowds. Like usually attracts like, so you'd think Casey's kids would try their hands at animal imitations and wild-eyed looliganisms, as Carrigan did in the old Bradenton days. For Carrigan was a gent with a chilly spark in his pale eye, a jutting jaw and a hard, throaty bark. He could fan people with his knuckles and say such words as you never heard in Sunday school.

So why did Bill's boys drop bullfrogs and grass serpents and other livestock down the pants of the other scholars or turn the training sessions into schoolyard scuffles by boy-rolling each other on the diamond or chasing each other around the countryside with shirltles streaming and elbows flapping? And why do Casey's kids behave like docile, dignified characters who never give local Methodist mothers

BRUINS NEED LONE POINT TO RETAIN LEAGUE TITLE

EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1940

HOCKEY HOMER. Boston Evening American's exclusive Speed Ray camera catches Eddie Wiseman (No. 7) sending the Bruins into the lead in the National League standings with the deciding goal against the New York Rangers. Wiseman took a pass from Art Jackson to beat Goalie Dave Kerr, on ice, with little more than a minute to play.

Carrying all the drama of a Stanley Cup clash, the Bruins definitely ended the Rangers' hex by chalking up their sweetest victory of the season at the expense of the Patrickmen before a wild-eyed crowd of 16,304 customers, thus regaining the National Hockey League lead.

That Silver Thatched fox, Les Patrick, pulled every trick in the book, to come out with a deadlock but a pair of lightly regarded gents, Eddie Wiseman and Art Jackson, foiled the plot just 77 seconds before the end of the game. Right up to that moment, the Rangers were apparently all right. They figured that if they came through with a tie and then won in New York tomorrow night, they could clinch the Prince of Wales cup.

Thanks to Jackson and Wiseman, though, the Bruins have just about wrapped up the coveted league championship and the award for the third successive year.

Even if the Bruins lose to the Rangers tomorrow night, all they have to do is tie the lowly Canadiens Sunday night and the cup is home.

But the Bruins were not thinking of that Wales trophy. They wanted

10,000 Pin Sets Wait Onslaught Of N. E. Keglers

By PINFALL

Amateurs eager to get preferred dual unit times have already started filing entries for the fifth annual American-Record-Advertiser Diamond Medal N. E. Bowling Championships.

Dorothy A. Mack and Pauline Dunaway, both of Boston, have the distinction of being the first ladies doubles team to officially enter the candlepin classic.

In the mixed doubles, first honors went to Dorothy Elliott of Arlington and Don J. Cassidy of Waltham.

Johnny McClellan, a Braintree High School student, came up with the initial boys' entry.

ENTERS FOUR EVENTS

For mass entries, the Brunswick Rifle & Cullender Co. entered its Cottonballs as a team and for singles. The quartet is made up of Charles S. O'Connell, Frank Leffler, Tom Phillips, Jack Lancaster and Charles F. Shaw.

The last named, Charles F. Shaw, is the first in the tourney to enter four events while Charles S. O'Connell is the first to be in three events. These two keggers will roll in the doubles in addition to their team and singles attempts. Shaw will also team with Ruth M. Cronin in the mixed doubles.

FILED UP EARLY

Entries have been coming in earlier than ever before for the little event which starts March 30 at the Huntington Club Alleya, Jack Stafford who has over 10,000 sets of pins at the club which boasts of 65 alleys on one floor, the only one of its kind in the country, has everything in readiness for the opening night.

In fact plans are now being completed by the committee to make the opening night the biggest affair in the five-year history of the tourney.

arouse the ire of the Roosters but the B's refused to bite.

There was only one flareup and that was a pip. It came late in the second period when Red Hamill and Bryan Hextall tangled after jamming into the boards. Bill Stewart ruled them both off and then for no good reason, Hextall wound up and planted a beautiful left hook on Hamill's chin when Red was relaxed and unprepared. The red head quickly swung into action, but could inflict no damage as both clubs crowded around and the melee was halted.

Bill Stewart then changed Hextall's penalty to a major but this three-minute advantage did the Bruins little good as they did not even threaten.

ONLY 70 SECONDS REMAINED

Outside of this tangle, the Bruins stuck strictly to business and led up to that dramatic final goal.

It came out of no place with the B's third line on the ice and less than two minutes remaining. Eddie Wiseman picked up a loose puck at mid-ice, came in over the blue line, passed to Art Jackson and then raced in the direction of the Rangers net.

Jackson wound up from 30 feet out and let fly, as Davey Kerr pinned himself nicely. Wiseman, just outside the lip, deflected the plug and in she went and wild went 18,304 customers.

The first goal came late in the opening session when Ott Heller carried in alone and followed Phil Watson right around Hamill. Heller uncorked an ordinary shot

Nurmi and Maki Will Continue Tour of Country

CHICAGO, March 13 (INS)—

"My country still needs help."

With that explanation, Paavo Nurmi, Finland's one-time king of distance runners, today declared that the Finnish-Russian peace will make no difference in the nationwide exhibition tour he is making with Talo Maki, another "flying Finn," to aid his country.

"The money raised from now on will go for the rehabilitation of those places hardest hit by the war," Naylor Stone, American representative for the runners said.

Nurmi was glum when informed of the peace terms, declaring they were "no good" for Finland. Maki, who had been worried about the safety of his wife in Helsinki, was jubilant.

which caught Brimsek napping for the rubber sled home.

After checking both dressing rooms after the game — was learned that Watson showed his stick out and just nudged the puck into the far corner.

Just who scored the goal was at that time for the Rangers were not a matter of great importance one up and were out to hold that advantage.

They reckoned without the Kraut line, though.

The second period was a couple of minutes old when Milt Schmidt snaked the puck loose and went roaring down the middle. He had Ott Heller and Babe Pratt to lick. Schmidt quickly sized up the situation and went wide around the right of Pratt—seeing no chance to break in he carried round to net and then fed a perfect passout to little Bobby Bauer.

The initial member of the Kraut line took the pass on the fly, stopped momentarily from about 12 feet out and shot true for the equalizer.

With victory hope diminished, the Rangers continued their cautious play hoping for a tie but Jackson and Wiseman conspired to wreck their hopes.

Needless to say, those Rangers went wild in the last 17 seconds. They stormed the B's citadel to no avail. With five seconds remaining, they took Kerr off the three six men up the ice but the Bruins were not to be denied.

GARDEN SCRAPINGS

Obeysing a superstitious whim, Manager Art Ross made Flash Hollet the 18th man as Hollett was not in uniform the last time the B's whipped the Rangers.

The Bruins leave for New York at 2 o'clock this afternoon in order get a good night's rest before tomorrow's clash.

As the situation now stands, the Bruins are one point out front and if they lose tomorrow, Rangers again go one point ahead. . . . This coming affair, though, is the last league game for the Rangers, while the Bruins have their windup with the fall-out Canadiens Sunday night. . . . if the B's tie the Montreal gang and lose to the Rangers they finish up with 65 points, the Bruins with 64.

After the game both Stet Hill and Dit Clapper declared they felt fine and that their injuries did not bother them in the least. . . . Roy Snatcher had a pulled tendon in his foot, not bad enough to sideline him for tomorrow night.

Schmidt increased his point total to 31 which insures the N. H. L. scoring leadership. . . . Bobby Eason climbed into a tie for second place with Woody Dumart the third member of the Kraut line with his goal which brings their total to 41.

'The Angel' Flies Again Tonight On Arena Mat

Gino Garibaldi, Italian grappler, has his biggest assignment of the season tonight in the Arena, where he'll try to ground "The Angel" in the top event of Paul Bowser's weekly tournament.

Garibaldi can force "The Angel" to the limit. He is big and is rough enough to keep an opponent on guard at all times.

As had been his custom, "The Angel" will try to corner Garibaldi in a "bear hug" at an early stage.

Pick Bobby Doerr To Play Infield On All-Star Team

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 13—With all the hullabaloo attendant on the advent of Dominic DiMaggio to the Red Sox, and his injury, one is liable to overlook a player like Robert Pershing Doerr. Yet consider this remarkable fact: Doerr, younger than DiMaggio, is starting his fourth year with the Red Sox, his third as a regular, and already has established himself as one of baseball's top flight players.

And to back up that statement, Doerr was selected to play on the American League All-Star team against the National League All-Stars in a Finnish Relief Fund game Sunday, replacing the injured DiMaggio.

Yes, sir, the records show that Bobby Doerr, Red Sox second baseman, was born on April 7, 1918, while Di Mag was born in February of the same year.

Di Mag is breaking into big time at 22. Doerr was only 19 when he signed with the Sox, 19 when he made the grade.

ONLY WILLIAMS YOUNGER

Ted Williams is the only regular on the club younger than Doerr, and Earl Johnson is the only rookie on the roster younger than the flashy second sacker.

Infants like Mickey Harris, Frank and broad shoulders that he spends plenty of time in the great outdoors.

Bobby was 19 when he started with the Sox. He had won his spurs at spring training and started the season as the regular second baseman.

Right after the season opened, however, Big Ed Linke hit Bobby a terrific blow on the head with a pitched ball, and it looked as if his career was ended before it really had started.

SUED GEHRINGER

But everything turned out for the best, it seems. While Bobby was riding the bench recovering from the effects of the blow, he had plenty of time to study the way Charlie Gehring of Detroit played

FRED CORCORAN BILL GRIMES GENE SARAZEN
ALWAYS FAIR WEATHER—When old golf friends get together there's reason for the smiles shown by Corcoran, Boston boy who guides the touring golf pros; Grimes, veteran Boston American golf expert, and Sarazen, many times top man among the pros.

Dasso, Bill Sayles, Woody Rich, Al Brazier, Herb Hash and Bill Butland are a few months older than Bobby.

And it will be considered remarkable if they make the grade either this year or the next.

Surely, a child wonder is our Bobby.

Bobby could always play ball. He had the unique experience of playing with the Hollywood club of the Coast League at the age of 16, before he had finished high school. And he was a basketball star, as Oscar Vitt will tell you, for the present Cleveland chief managed the Hollywood club at that time.

INDEPENDENT AT 18

Then Bobby went back and finished high school. The next season Vitt moved on to Newark, and Frank Shellenback took over the Missions. Now both Bobby and Frank are with the Sox, and both are delighted to be together again.

At 18, Bobby had saved enough money to buy a 160-acre ranch at Illabe, Oregon, where he spends the off season.

"The hunting and fishing are exceptionally good there," says Bobby, and one can tell from the kid's clear eye, bronzed skin second base . . . how he pivoted on double plays particularly.

"Joe Cronin helped me a lot, too," Bobby hastens to add. "When I did get back in the lineup, I was ready to go. Joe had changed my batting stance for the better. And whereas it takes a rookie a year to get onto the hitters, playing alongside of a veteran like Joe made it much easier."

Bobby's rise into the 300 ranks last year didn't surprise him, even though he did bat in the leadoff position most of the season.

"I was hitting the ball just as well in '38," says Bobby, "but I just had a bit more luck last year. More dropped safely for me."

Incidentally, Bobby batted .318 last season, only Fox and Williams of the regulars topping him.

CHANGE WOULD HELP B. A.

It hasn't been decided what spot in the batting order Doerr will occupy this year, but veterans figure that leading off takes 20 points off a fellow's average.

If that is true, and if Bobby doesn't lead off, that would make him a .333 hitter which would put him among the league's leading hitters, as well as at the top of the fielders.

LOUGHRAN BROKE; ACCEPTS $2500 JOB

PHILADELPHIA, March 13 (AP)—Tommy Patrick Loughran, stripped by misfortune of most of the riches he piled up in his sensational ring career, is holding down a $2500-a-year city job.

Mayor Robert E. Lamberton made the former light-heavyweight champion, idol of millions of fight fans less than ten years ago, "executive secretary and supervisor" in the bureau of recreation. Loughran campaigned for Lamberton last year.

A series of reverses has drained Tommy's share of the big gates he drew during his nine fighting years. Since his retirement in 1935 he has been fight manager, restaurant man, conductor of a physical education course, boxing promoter—none with much success.

The fighters he manager never got very far. There was disagreement with the owners of the Philadelphia restaurant that hired him for his name, and Tommy left the dine-and-wine business. Then the restaurant closed.

Loughran's correspondence course in physical culture was beset by troubles with the Federal Trade Commission over "certain misleading statements" in the advertisements.

Last year he took up fight promotion. That failed, too.

So now the blue-eyed, massive-chested Irishman who became one of the most popular light-heavyweights in history and a serious contender for the heavyweight crown, is a city job-holder.

St. Paul '41 Choice For Bowling Tourney

DETROIT, March 13 (AP)—While the 40th annual convention of the American Bowling Congress is not scheduled until March 23, speculation is already rife as to the likely host cities for both the 1941 and 1942 events.

St. Paul seems to be the only contender for next year's tournament. The Minnesota capital was nosed out by Detroit last year and it is likely the Saints will entertain the show next year.

Dizzy Dean Signs Contract

CHICAGO, March 13 (INR)—Dizzy Dean has come to terms with the Chicago Cubs and will not "starve" through the 1940 baseball season, as he had promised to do unless given the contract he demanded, it was revealed today.

Dean, who was believed to have been offered $10,000 for the season while holding out for $15,000, apparently was highly pleased by the final terms, reported to be about $11,000.

The pitcher ironed out his difficulties with the Cubs by phone from his Texas home and sealed the issue today with a telegram to the Cubs' Chicago office.

It was considered likely his new contract probably would call for a bonus should Dean prove to have overcome the arm trouble that kept him on the bench most of last year.

CASEY STENGEL SOLD ON JOE GULLEDGE

By BILL GRIMES

BRADENTON, March 13—"Although I know Jack Onslow and Bob Coleman will both faint if I do, I might decide to keep this boy Joe Gulledge," declared Manager Casey Stengel between a morning and afternoon session at the 9th St. Grounds.

"Gulledge has really shown me something. And, you know that he hasn't had any legs since you've been down here. He came up with a 'Charlie Horse' about the second day he was in camp, while chasing some of Coleman's fly balls through that sand out there in the outfield.

"And, then just as his injury started to yield to treatment, he tried chasing some more through that Sahara Desert, with the same result. So he's been around here practically without any legs but he's shown me plenty.

"There isn't a player in camp any cause to lock their daughters away after dark lest they be chin-chucked on the curbstones?

Why?

I'll tell you why! Because when Quinn was papapling his pathological pennant puppies on the Red Sox they had no adult athletics to set the standard of behavior. They were, one and all, a lot of adolescent crackpots with no tactful elders to slap them aside when they lighted matches under each other's coattails in the lobbies or started firing clouds of infield turf and let their legs go soft and spraddled after ground hits like their joints had come un-hinged.

The kids in this Bee camp take their cue from the veterans like Felle, Lopez, Cookey, Hassett, Swift, French and Tobin. The older Bees set the pattern the baby Bees, or maggots, imitate. The nursery days at Bradenton are far behind. Today the Bees are men!

who has looked as well with that bat as that kid. Sure, he's right out of college. But, what of it. Any boy with his natural ability can't do me any harm. And, unless I'm wrong, he's the type that you might drop in there and he'll get you "four for four." Ott or none of those other stars can do better than that

GULLEDGE SMART

"What I particularly like about Gulledge is that he remembers what you tell him and then goes out and does it. I had all of those kids, Sisti, Weitemann, Roberge, Rowell, Younker and Ross down there in right field for about an hour this morning. I went into great detail explaining about pulling and snapping at pitches. I want them to be able to pull inside ball and to step into and hit outside balls.

"I watched Gulledge closely, for he's new. I haven't seen him under fire except in the few Yammigan games, we've played. He has a big league stance and he hasn't been seen him hit anything but line drives since the spring training started. And, I guess he's right, for that's how I came to take special notice of him.

HAS TONY'S APPROVAL

"It's a treat to watch him up at that plate. At least, it is for me, for I know that within a year or so, he going to 'cut the mustard' for me or whoever succeeds me, in case that little fellow ties the can on me because I haven't delivered.

"Gulledge has the old power, whether he hits to left, right or straight away. I was talking to Cuccinello about him a few minutes and Tony told me that he hasn't been seen him hit anything but line drives since the spring training started. And, I guess he's right, for that's how I came to take special notice of him.

SEASON'S LAST

Al-Stars In Ice Fete

A sparklin ice fete opens in the Garden tonight with the first of five performances of the All-Star European Ice Revue.

This ice revue, only recently assembled, has been labeled a banner attraction in the cities where it has played and is the last to show in Boston this season.

The revue does not confine itself to featuring one personality. Fifteen members of the cast are stars of the skating world, and they are backed by a chorus of 24 skating beauties who were featured in London and in other ice revues.

HELLO, AMERICA

Different skating routines, a different type of comedy, thrilling solo efforts, and the grace, rhythm and ease of the chorus all go together to make this revue something different.

"Hello America," a short skit, opens the show and several of the principals help portray the American welcome for this skating troupe. From there the show runs the gamut of skating entertainment.

There's Pamela Prior of London, the women's professional skating champion and a fine artist; Ron and Cliff Thael, England's pair skating champions who are seen twice in favorite routines, "On Wings of Steel," a whirlwind speed offshoot, and in "Waiting With You," a classic in three-quarter time.

Fritz Dietl, Viennese star and professional skater of Austria, makes his American bow on silk skates and both of his numbers are the utmost difficult feats on skates.

AN AMERICAN SLIPS IN

An American skater slips in to almost steal the show near the close, when Miss Audrey Peppe of New York, a member of two United States Olympic teams, a two-time runnerup for national honors and the leading woman free style skater on the continent makes her bow. Miss Peppe is truly a master of the art of skating, and on top of that charming personality. Then there are the beautiful Simpson sisters—Peggy and Mary—from Banff, Canada, known as the "Darlings of the Rockies," who do a skating adagio and some jitterbugging.

Two other Americans, Ruth English and Lou Pitts, aid in the general scheme of things with their version of the popular song "Are You Having Any Fun."

N. Y. U. Relay Team To Race Green

HANOVER, N. H., March 13 (INS)—Another attraction has been added to the 10th annual Dartmouth invitational indoor track meet, it had been announced today by Coach and Sponsor Harry Hillman. Half-mile relay teams of New York University and Dartmouth are to meet in an attempt to shatter the record for the event.

'Hank' Run Ragged Playing in Outfield

By the Associated Press

AVALON, Calif., March 13—The Chicago Cubs prepared to set out for the mainland and their first exhibition game with the White Sox today minus a regular third sacker (Stan Hack), a regular centerfielder (Hank Leiber), and their most famous pitcher (Dizzy Dean).

Hack, who has been recovering from an operation, was due in from Los Angeles today but holdouts Dean and Leiber haven't been heard from lately.

BRADENTON, Fla. — Hank Greenberg is hitting as hard as a left fielder as he used to when he played first base, but it appears he still has a lot to learn about fielding his new position. Hank was over near center field yesterday when Cookie Lavagetto belted a triple that started Brooklyn's five-run rally. A moment later he had to do a lot more road work on Roy Cullenbine's pop-fly double.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—Manager Frankie Frisch says he doesn't expect his Pittsburgh Pirates to remain entirely away from alcoholic beverages during the championship season, but any drinking during the training period is out. "I hate to appear an extremist," he said, "but I don't want to catch any of my players taking as much as a glass of beer while we are in training."

ORLANDO, Fla.—Pres. Clark Griffith of Washington's Senators says Alejandro Carrasquel is going to be a better pitcher this year because of a talk about letting up against certain batters. "I took him up in my room for an hour and really poured it on about letting up," said Griffith. "He heard things he won't hear in a long time."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The two most recent arrivals in the New York Yankees' camp, Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing, are full of ambition for the coming season. DiMaggio hopes to lead the league in batting again and take home run and runs batted-in honors as well, saying:

"I think that if I can go through the season without getting hurt I can do it."

Ruffing says he expects to win at least 20 games this year.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Retribution wasted no time catching up with Johnny Peacock, Boston Red Sox catcher. He tossed a ball at Jim Tabor and hit him on a finger that had been cut, sending the third baseman to the sidelines. A few minutes later Peacock was hit on the leg by a batted ball, a vein swelled up, and he, too, hustled out of uniform.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—As fans at the St. Louis Browns' camp see it, the broad smile on Manager Fred Haney's face may be attributed to the hitting of Chet Laabs, the improved hurling arm of Jake Wade and the impressive fielding of Joe Gallagher. Johnny Berardino's quick recovery from an attack of gripe may have something to do with it.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Bill Terry keeps trying hard to make trades that will strengthen his New York Giants but all he's been able to get so far was a ground keeper who has been serving the Cleveland Indians. After Monday's game he drove to Fort Myers to confer with Cleveland officials, and visited the Boston Bees at Bradenton.

"I asked Bob Quinn to name his own price on the man I wanted," said Terry, "but he told me he just wouldn't make a deal for the man."

FINNISH FIER GIVE SUPREME TEST MARCH 30

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, March 13 (INS)—Despite the imposing array of world records he holds, neither American track fans nor American track experts are yet willing to concede that Taisto Maki, the flying Finn, is a greater runner than Gregory Rice, the American champion.

Among the doubting Thomases is Dan Ferris, veteran of the A. A. U., who today arranged a three-mile match race that will bring together Maki, Rice, Don Lash of Indiana and probably Joe McCluskey, the national steeplechase king.

This race will highlight the special track meet scheduled for Madison Square Garden March 30 or 31 for the benefit of the Finnish relief fund.

"We are bringing together the king of the outdoor middle distance men and the boss of the boards," said Dan today, "and it will need a better prophet than I am to forecast the result."

"Maki holds the outdoor world record for two miles—8:53.2. Rice holds the indoor record—8:56.2. Maki also holds the outdoor mark for three miles—13:42.4 and Rice holds the indoor mark—13:55.3."

"Strangely enough, both men believe they can improve on their best marks and I agree with them. I don't know how fast Maki can run indoors but it's a foregone conclusion he'll have to break the indoor mark by a large margin to beat the little fellow from Notre Dame."

"And don't overlook Lash. Three miles is his favorite distance and he is going to point for this race. He is an unpredictable runner and if he feels in the mood he might take both Rice and Maki."

"We probably won't have any Olympic games this year so this will give us a line on what would have happened for Maki and Rice surely would have met in Helsinki this summer had not the war intervened."

Board Denies Madigan Fired From St. Mary's

MORAGA, Cal. March 13 (INS)—The St. Mary's College Board of Athletic Control today combatted statements by Edward P. "Slip" Madigan that he was ousted after a year as football coach because of a personal feud.

It was indicated that Jim Phelan, university of Washington coach, so an ex-Notre Dame man, may be sought as a successor to Madigan.

Madigan declared his dismissal today was caused by Andrew Burke of San Francisco, member of the Board of Athletic Control.

"Burke and I had differences of policy," said Madigan. Board Chairman J. Philip Murphy, however, stated: "The board's action was not the result of any 'feud' between Mr. Madigan and any member of the board. The board's decision was made more than a week ago and Mr. Madigan was immediately informed of it."

"In reality, he hasn't been fired. He's just not going to be rehired. And there's a difference in that."

"Meanwhile, pending the expiration of Madigan's contract, on March of 1941, others will be in charge of St. Mary's football team."

FATHER'S LIFE FIGHT IN VAIN

Baby Dies

Battle to save life of his newly-born infant, stricken with lack of breath, is staged by James Bailey in Johnson City, Ill., after he built "iron lung" out of old oil can and washing machine parts and rubber tire tubing. Baby seemed to be improving, suddenly died. Bailey broke down in tears.

Fight Ahead

As the Russ-Finn war ends, spotlight is focused on Allied-German encounter . . . and here, British combat fliers rush to their fighting planes, prepared to give battle to Nazi warplanes reported headed their way.
